ANSWER

TOTHE

REMARKS

ONTHE

SERMONS

OFTHE

Reverend Mr. JAMES SLOSS,

UPON THE

DOCTRINE of the TRINITY.

By JAMES SLOSS, A. M.

LONDON:

Printed for John Oswald, at the Rose and Crown, and Joseph Davidson, at the Angel; both in the Poultry.

MDCCXXXIX.

In a short Time will be Published,

A N A N S W E R,

To Mr. Taylor's Further Defence of the Common Rights of Christians,

By the fame Author.

LONDON:

for form Civato, at the Referred Order, orden Daviosas, at the Angel; bechinds in be

An

Complaexpect
I expre
Perform
guess:
and bef
sertion

Reputation rest of He a importation miligion,

Trinity which I He

Reason &c. Fa Man, v standing over-po Christ, has not there be fame To in being who ex

An ANSWER to the REMARKS, &c.

I HE Author of the Remarks, if I may be allow'd to call him an Author, mentions some things, which, he says, are a just Ground of Complaint against my Performance. One is, that I expect an implicit Assent to a Set of Phrases, in which I express my main Scheme; but in what Part of the Performance I do this, he leaves to the Reader to guess: for my part I know not where I have done so; and before he can expect an implicit Assent to his Assertion on his bare Word, he must establish a better Reputation of speaking the Truth, than he and the rest of his Arian Brethren have hitherto attained.

He also says, I represent those, who explain the important Argument, I am upon, in a different way from my self, as sapping the very Foundations of Religion, which is another Falshood; what I say is p. 2. that every Attempt to destroy the Doctrine of the holy Trinity, is a sapping the Foundations of Christianity; which I'm persuaded every true Christian will allow.

He also says, I represent these as Persons, whose Reason is perverted, their Understanding debauched, &c. False again. What I assert, p. 302. is, that a Man, whose Reason is so far perverted, and Understanding so far debauched, that he is proof against the over-powering Evidence of the supreme Derty of Christ, discovering it self in his preserving all things, has nothing to hinder him to reject the Evidence for there being any supreme Deity at all, drawn from the same Topic, that things are preserved, and continued in being: Which is very far from saying, that they, who explain the important Argument, I'm upon, in a different way from me, are perverted in their Understanding, and debauched in their Reason; for Perfons may have different ways of explaining that Doctrine, and yet all agree in the Substance of it. Thus does this Author set out in his first Page with three Falshoods in his mouth; a poor Presage of what is to be expected from him in the rest of the Performance.

Another thing, he fays, complained of is, that I represent the Doctrine of those, whom I oppose, as Arianism, while they disclaim all Regard to Arius, and hold none of his peculiar Doctrines. Here he commits a very great Blunder; for I oppose Arians, as far as they are Arians, and if any Person renounces the peculiar Doctrines of Arius, fo far I have nothing to do with him. But I not only in my Sermons oppose Arians, but also the Semi-Arians and Socinians, and all Anti-Trinitarians in whatever shape. And before I have done with this Author, I shall shew, that he in particular is an Arian in the strictest sense. And as to his Infinuation, that I call that Arianism, which is not fo, he ought to have pointed at fome particular Paffage in my Sermons, where I have done this: but fince he has not, nor can do fo, this will be looked upon by every impartial Person, as injurious and abusive. And indeed he has forfeited his Character too far in the Falshoods, I have detected in his first Page, to expect, that any Person of Candour should depend on his bare Affertion. He also says, I appear sometimes as a Tritheift, fometimes as a Sabellian, and that one of them I must be. But as he fatisfies himself with a mere Alfertion of this, without attempting the least Proof of it, I shall content my self with calling this mere Calumny, appealing to my Sermons, and the Judgment of Mankind, whether it can justly be reckoned any thing elfe.

Page 7. Another thing he complains of is, that I represent some of my Protestant Brethren injuriously, when I say, that some who call themselves Protestants, hold this prevailing Error, big with all manner of Errors, which I represent in these Words, (viz.) that let Mei and noi they pr ver so c Superna Guilt th Brethre take int tion, an Man's I y comp ng this hem in ring an re with fter al inder ar ormity aithful ! est Mea with the Man lies lay, w Law, or ert it w from Pag mons. word to been at fo enquired within th s the Me he Law, erve, the

luch a U1

istent wi

loes excu

gether tak

contracted

his, he we

tet Men believe what they will, provided they be sincere? and not conscious of the Truth of the contrary of what they profess to believe, tho' what they believe should be never so contrary to what is revealed, either by natural, or supernatural Revelation, yet they do not contract any Guilt thereby. The Injury done those, whom he calls Brethren, according to him, lies in this, that I do not ake into their Case a faithful Enquiry, and Examination, and a fincere Use of the best Means within a Man's Reach to inform himself: but I think this is fuly comprehended in SINCERITY. Yet notwithstandng this is taken into their Case, and let us suppose hem indeed to far fincere, and to far faithful in enquiing and examining, and using the best Means, that re within their Reach to inform themselves; and yet, fter all mistake the Rule and Law, which they are inder an Obligation to observe, and do not act in conformity to it; in that Case, will that SINCERITY, that aithful Enquiry, and Examination, that Use of the lest Means within a Man's Reach, which is consistent with the want of a Conformity to a Law and Rule, the Man lies under an Obligation to observe and live unto, fay, will this excuse his not conforming to such a law, or Rule, and take away the Guilt of it? I afert it will not: and I hope, I have also proved it, rom Page 13 to Page 20th of the Preface to my Sermons. Nor does the Author of the Remarks offer one word to prove the contrary. Here he should have peen at some pains to shew, that after Men have faithfully inquired after Truth, and used the best Means that are within their REACH, and yet mistake the Rule, which s the Measure of their Actions, or do not conform to he Law, which they are under an Obligation to oberve, that in that Case such a faithful Enquiry, or uch a Use of the Means, within his Reach, as is coniltent with mistaking the Rule, or not observing it, loes excuse the Person, thus so far sincere; and altogether takes away any Guilt, that otherwise might be ontracted without such a SINCERITY: If he had done his, he would have spoke to the purpose; but it seems B 2 his

Jnerochus

to ce.

and om-

nces ning op-

and fore ne in

as to s not Pafapon usive.

pect, bare Tri-

hem Af-

of of Cament

l any

tants, er of

) that let

his Tutors fuggested nothing of this kind to him, and were themselves at a loss in the Case; and therefore we are not to expect any fuch thing from him,

But the' they could not help him out here, yet, I think, they might have faved him from falling into that Blunder, he commits in the End of this 7th Page; where he supposes, that a Person's not conforming to the Law, to which he is subject, (for that is the true State of the present Controversy) who has used the best Means in his power for his Infor. mation, may be justify'd as innocent and free of Guilt, tho' he does not conform to the Law, to which he is subject, upon the same foot that a Person may be justify'd, who differs from the Sentiments of any private Person, or diffents from the Articles of the Faith of a national Church, established by Law. Now to lead this poor Creature out of this Labyrinth he has involved himself in, and that I may dispel that Mist and Cloud of Duft, he has raised about him here, I shall shew the great Disparity of these two Cases; and so he will be able to fee, where he is, and upon what uncertain Ground he stands. As to the last of these Cases, (viz.) a Person, who differs in Sentiment from an established Church, or a Church not established by Law, or from any private Person, may be justly vindicated upon the foot of private Judgment; because every Person has a right to private Judgment exclufive of any Society, whether established, or not established by Law, or of any particular Person; because none of these have a right to oblige any Person to a Conformity to their Sentiments farther, than they can make it evident, that their Sentiments and the divine Law are the same; for otherwise their Authority 15 void and null. And even when they do make it evident, that their Sentiments, or Decrees, are conform to the divine Law, 'tis this Agreeableness to the divine Law, upon which the Obligation to conform to it, as a Rule of Life, or Sentiment, is founded; and not the Authority of any religious Society, or their Rulers: far less the Authority of any particular private P have a formity timent blish ar which Christ, there is when a Rule of ment de he is bo vate Ju divine I finite G in the more u but who Conform bound t Guilt to or Tra Aggrav by, and the neg within it felf. Page

Preface. my Arg ry just . oully pa tirely to tor one outly pa mentior to pitch provide He t ing, th

Im.

ere-

yet,

ling

this

not

(for who

for-

uilt,

ne is ufti-

vate

of a

lead

vol-

and shall and so what thele

from

d by vincause

xclu-

estacause

to 2

v can

ivine

ity 18

t evi-

form he di-

rm to

and their

r pri-

1.

vate Person. Tis true Churches, or their Pastors. have a ministerial Authority to call Persons to a Conformity to the divine Law as a Rule of Life or Seniment; but they have no Authority to make, or establish any Law, or Rule either of Life or Sentiment. which is not made to their hand by the Lord Jefus Christ, the Head and only King of his Church. But there is a great Difference in the other Case, (viz.) when a Person does not conform to the divine Law as a Rule of Life or Sentiment; his Right of private Judgment does not at all exclude the Authority of this; but he is bound in the strictest manner to conform his private Judgment to it; and his Non-conformity to the divine Law or Rule, to which he is subject, infers infinite Guilt, however faithful or unfaithful he has been in the Use of Means of Information. Tis true the more unfaithful the higher is the Guilt aggravated; but wherever there is a Transgression of, or a want of Conformity to the divine Law, to which a Person is bound to conform, infinite Guilt is contracted: for the Guilt takes its rife from the want of Conformity to, or Transgression of the Law of God; and 'tis the Aggravations of the Guilt only, that are measured by, and take their Rife from fuch a Circumstance, as the neglect of the due use of Means of Information within a Man's Power and Reach, and not the Guilt H felf.

Page 8th, he tells us, there are other things in my Preface, and with respect to my manner of conducting my Argument in general, against which there lie very just Exceptions; but which however he industriously passes by. But what these are, we are left entirely to guess. And I slatter my self it is much easier for one to hit upon the Reason, why he so industriously passes by these Exceptions, than it is for him to mention them. And when he or his Tutors are able to pitch on these just Exceptions, I hope, I shall be provided sufficiently to answer them.

He tells us farther in this 8th Page, that my afferting, that the Doctrine of the Trinity is of that Confequence

fequence in the Christian Scheme, and so closely connected with the most effential and necessary Principles of our holy Religion, and they have all fuch an absolute Dependence upon it, that every Attempt to de. stroy it is a Home-stroke at reveal'd Religion, and a fapping the very Foundations of Christianity; I fay, that my afferting this in the Senfe, in which I explain it, is the very thing in debate; and therefore, according to him, in that view it is a shameful begging the Question. But here he discovers his Ignorance of what Logicians call begging the Question; which does not confift in laying down a Thesis, which is afterward to be proved by Arguments; which is all I do here: but it lies in proving the Thesis laid down by an Argument, that is only a mere Affertion of the Thesis over again, and carries no other Evidence along with it for its Proof. And unless the Author of the Remarks can prove that some of my Arguments for proof of this Thesis have this Defect, as he has not attempted to do, he imputes a begging the Question to me without any Foundation; and discovers such a strong laclination to find Faults in my Performance, as both hurries him into the greatest Blunders himself, and at the fame time betrays the want of that Candor and Charity in him; which those of his Party would fain pretend a value for. But their Actions in a multitude of Instances, both when God and Men call for the Exercise of that valuable Grace, shew, that it is but a vain and empty Pretence. Comprehensiv

Page 9th, he finds fault with my representing those as Enemies to Religion, and Adversaries to the Truth, who oppose the Orthodox, or Athanasian Scheme; and blames those, who have excluded them from their Christian Communion. But after his usual manner, he does not offer one word of an Argument, why they ought not to reject such, as not being Christians, who do not believe in Christ as Emmanuel, the true supreme God in our Nature: these two Natures, the Nature of the true supreme God, subsisting after the manner manner the ado into a p Person o way, hi Faith 'ir these N Christ; ieved Christ; finite do true fu Christia Christ, n a Per fers from true Ch owers c they are Sentence Page of his w true Scr furvive place as it will conity obtained with they will apon him is report him; I those of nicating

*See my ofeph Ra profess 1

icle of]

Unity o

divine P

(7)

onoles

ofo-

de-

da

ay,

ain

or-

ing

e of

loes

vard

ere:

Ar-

nesis

with arks

of of

pted

vith-

In-

both

t the

arity

tend

f In-

Ex-

out a

those ruth,

and

their

nner,

they

who

ie su-

, the

r the manner as it does in the Logos, the second Person of the adorable Trinity: and the Nature of Man, taken into a personal Union therewith, are so effential to the Person of Christ, that, if either of them are taken away, his Person is destroyed; and where there is a Faith in any Person as Mediator, who has not both these Natures, such a Faith does not terminate on Christ; I mean the true Christ in that Case is not believed in, but only fome other fictitious and falfe Christ; that differs as widely from the true Christ as finite does from infinite: fuch therefore, who deny the rue supreme Deity of Christ, are justly excluded Christian Communion, as not being Followers of Christ, (viz.) the true Christ, because they believe n a Person, whom they falsely call Christ, that differs from him in things effential to the Person of the rue Christ: and therefore they are justly deemed Folowers of another Person than Christ; that is to say, they are justly reckoned not to be Christians by the Sentence of Excommunication *.

Page 10th, our Remarker tells us, that he and those of his way believe, that that which they take to be the true Scripture-Doctrine of the Trinity, meaning the contrary of the Athanasian or Orthodox Scheme, will survive the Efforts of its Enemies, and maintain its place as an effential Article of Faith; and they hope t will continue to the end of time, wherever Christiahity obtains in any tolerable measure of Purity, and they wish it may do so. Now if this Remarker takes ppon him the Character of a Minister of Christ, as it s reported he does, I would put this one Question to him; How he can fatisfy his Conscience, in owning those of his Congregation for Christians, and communicating with them as fuch, who do not maintain and profess their Belief of this essential Doctrine, and Aricle of Faith, as he believes it to be? viz. That in the Unity of the divine Essence there is not a Trinity of livine Persons, and that the Lord Jesus Christ is not the true and supreme God of the same Substance with the Father; which is the true Doctrine of the Trining according to him. And his Meaning, if his Words have any Meaning, can be nothing else, than that he and the rest of his Arian Associates, whom I call my Adversaries, and Adversaries to the Truth, believe that these gross Errors and Heresies, which he and they look upon to be the true Scripture-Doctrine of the Trinity, " will furvive the Efforts of their Enemies, and maintain their place as effential Articles of Faith upon the foot of Scripture and Reason, ablu " Blasphemia, as they had done in the first Ages of " Christianity, till the times of Darkness came or " apace in the Christian World;" which times of Darkness according to him were, when Orthodoxy prevailed in the Christian World universally over A rianism: 'Tis these Arian Heresies he must mean, that have had a remarkable REVIVAL in these times of a more free and generous Enquiry; so he calls these times of Error, Libertinism, and Herefy, we live in In fine, it is these Errors and Heresies he and his As fociates hope so earnestly will continue to the end of time, and that they wish so heartily they may. I leave this inconfistent Man to extricate himself out of this and give a fatisfactory Account of it to the World how he comes to acknowledge those for Christians, whom he confesses to be such as deny an essential Article of the Christian Faith, as all those called the Or thodox, according to him, must be.

^{*}See my Prefatory Discourse to the True Narrative of the Case of oseph Rawson, Page 17.

(8)

Page 11th, he challenges me to shew, what Parts of sacred Scripture my Adversaries have vitiated; and where and when they have denied the Authority of any Texts, in which the Doctrine of the Trinity is plainly and clearly contained. But since he has the hard Courage to give a Challenge, without signing it, I do not think, I should suffer in my Reputation and Ho nour, the I should not answer it. But, if this Gentleman did not want either the Eyes, or the Conscience of an impartial Remarker, he would see, that I can Socrates, the Greek Historian, as a proper Evidence

fupportin

upport ious an gainst th Unity hing m ic Aut Doctrin ained; shew, dain'd he Tex of all th gainst th nity is r ed the confeque genuine corrupt ion, pi he auth of St. 3 Langua Page, I to fee th ced to r of Arg dant Re

Page Copy of is conce

^{*} The Thomas A in order to of the Est rupt Reac Verse is a ditur ibid ritus, Aq unum s esse apposi Authorita

with

inity

ords

t he, I my lieve

they

f the

mies,

es of about

ges of

ne or

odoxy

ver A

1, that

s of a

thele

ive in

is Al-

end of

I leave

of this,

World,

istians,

ial Ar-

the Or

Partso

1; and

of any plainly

e hardy

it, Ido

nd Ho

his Gen

nscience

at I cit

vidence

pportin

upporting what I fay, when I affert, that the audaious and virulent Malice of the Anti-Trinitarians, arainst this Doctrine of the Trinity of Persons in the Unity of the divine Essence, discovers it self in nohing more, than in vitiating and denying the authenic Authority of those Texts of Scripture, wherein the Doctrine of the Trinity is most clearly and plainly conained; fee for this, Page 18. of my Sermons, where thew, that the Orthodox, according to Socrates, complain'd against the Arians for corrupting and vitiating he Text of St. John's Epistles: Which, as I said p. 19. of all the Portions of divine Revelation make most aainst them, and where the Doctrine of Christ's Divihity is most plainly revealed. Now, if they corruped the Text of John's Epistles, then they must of onsequence disown the authentic Authority of these genuine Texts, in whose place they substituted their forrupt Vitiations. So that Socrates, to a Demonstraion, proves that the Arians both vitiated and denied he authentic Authority of some Passages of the Text of St. John's Epiftles.*. As to the scurrilous abusive Language, he throws out upon me in the rest of this Page, I shall take no notice of it farther, than to smile ofee the weak Man so hardly put to it, that he is forted to make up the miserable Poverty, and Scarcity of Argument he labours under, with the superabuntant Redundancy of his Railing.

Page 12. our Remarker obliges the World with a Copy of a Letter, faid to be Mr. Platts's; as far as he is concern'd in it, I have nothing to do with it. Siquidem contra viventem Tyrannum aliquid moliri viri

^{*} There is an Instance of this in the very next Verse (8th.) Thomas Aquinas, in Expositione secundæ, &c. tells us, that Joachim, in order to destroy the Sense of the 7th Verse, whereby the Unity of the Essence in the three divine Persons is asserted, alledges a corrupt Reading in the 8th Verse, to prove, that the Unity in the 7th Verse is a Unity of Consent, and not a Unity of Essence. Nam subditur ibidem, & tres sunt, qui testimonium dant in terra, scilicet Spiritus, Aqua & Sanguis; & in quibusdam libris additur, ET HI TRES UNUM SUNT. Sed hoc in veris Exemplaribus non habetur, sed dicitur esse appositum ab hæreticis Arianis, ad pervertendum Intellectum sanum Authoritatis præmissæ, de Unitate Essentiæ trium Personarum.

ff Epi

which

on, is

y, not

orus, la

ove a t

ections

hen th

mmen

ves this

stificant

es unu

dit. Flo

lse it is

ent Co

rote up

is add resent C

lo most

his is fo

fit; fe

ave this

nost of

ext.

freek a

alshood

he first

ver was

he Alcai

een, tho

en Year

itions o

ng led cripts h

orrected

ntient (

n his th

acred C

opus cenfeo: functum vero Fato laceffere, cujusvis. Bu fince this Remarker takes it under his Protection, and tells us, that what it contains feems agreeable to Truth I shall shew, that every Sentence in it, not one excepted is contrary to Truth. The first Sentence is this, that I have not been able to shew, that any of the ancient Ver. The Falshood of this sions ever translated this Verse. is abundantly plain from the 5th Page of the Sermons, and the 14, 15, 16, and 17 Pages of the Letters, where I shew, that this Text was cited by Tertullian, and Cyprian, and confequently must have been in the old Italic Version, which was used by them, and which was made in the beginning of Christianity; this our Remarker ought to have taken notice of. Fulgentius allo, fee Page 75th of the Letters, cites this Text, and Coffee dorus refers to it, and they all used this ancient Version. The Armenian Version, which is above a thousand Years old, also has this Text. It must then be a constderable Impudence, or very gross Ignorance in the Remarker to fay, that it feems agreeable to Truth, that I have not been able to shew, that any of the ancient Versions ever translated this Text in the first sa hundred Years: or that the Latin Fathers, who mentioned it, did it any otherwise, than as a mystical laterpretation of what is now the eighth Verse. It is alfo false, what is farther added, that I have not shew's, that these Latin Fathers, who mentioned this Verse, did it any otherwise, than as a mystical Interpretation of what is now the 8th Verse: This will appear from what I fay, p. 17, 18, of the Letters, where I shew largely, that neither Tertullian, nor Cyprian, could have this mystical Sense in their view in citing this Verse; and that that mystical Sense was not known till an hundred and fifty Years after they had cited it, as a part of the facred Canon. The next Sentence is this, a Verse, says he, which he has not been able to shew, that any of the ancient Commentators, whether Greek or Latin, who wrote upon this Epistle, ever expounded. The Falshood of this will not only appear from the Author of the Synopsis of Scripture, who says in his Summary of this But

, and

Cruth,

epted,

, that

at Ver.

of this

mons,

where

, and

he old

which

ais our us also.

Caffio.

erfion.

oufand

confi-

in the Truth,

the an-

irst fix

o men-

cal In-

It is al-

hew'd,

se, did

tion of n what

argely,

ve this

e; and

undred

of the

se, says

of the

1, who

lshood

of the

of this first A Epistle of John, την ενότητα δε το υίν προς του πατέρα benut; which is plainly a Commentary on this Verse, which only this SAMENESS of the Father with the on, is expresly mentioned in all this Epistle. But I y, not to insist on this, there is a Work of Cassioorus, lately published in Italy, from a Manuscript aove a thousand Years old, which contains brief Reections on several Books of the New Testament: hen this Author comes to make his Reflections on is first Chapter of John's first Epistle, after he had ommented on fome other Verses therein, he expresly ives this Paraphrase on this Text, In calo autem, (viz. stificantur) Pater & Filius & Spiritus Sanctus, & bi es unus est Deus; Cassiodori Complectiones, p. 125. dit. Flor. From which it abundantly appears, how lse it is, what is here afferted; that none of the anent Commentators, whether Greek or Latin, who rote upon this Epistle, ever expounded this Verse. is added farther in the Letter, a Verse, which the resent Greek Manuscripts unanimously disclaim, as do so most of the ancient Latin ones. The Falshood of his is so notorious, that I need not infilt on the Proof t it; feeing both the Berlin and Dublin Manuscripts ave this Verse: And it is as notoriously false, that nost of the antient Latin Manuscripts disclaim this ext. Again, says he, a Verse, which the first printed reek and German Editions left out. This is also a falshood, tho' perhaps not for notorious as the rest; for he first Greek Impression of the New Testament, that ver was printed, had this Verse; which was that in he Alcala Polyglott, printed fifteen hundred and foureen, tho' the whole Work was not published till about en Years after. And tho' Erasmus published two Elitions of the New Testament without this Verse, beng led into that Mistake by some incorrect Manucripts he had seen; yet upon better Information he orrected his Mistake, depending on the Credit of an Intient Greek Manuscript, then extant in Britain; and n his third Edition inserted this Text as a part of the acred Canon. And whereas some English Editions have over, it

C 2

his Eye

dition 1

Text, v

cient G

by him

Era mu

ione, E

convenit

annicus

postris .

litum er

It wi

o any

ded to

Greek N

hat Lo

ning, w

han fev

par'd tl

ind, w in his I

wo; a

ween t

Verse what sor

John, a

Verse i

how fo

by him

Notes.

thefe Pa be read

valent i

any un

Part of

Years a Ritual, feeing

have this Text printed in a different Character, that is no Impeachment of its Authority; but rather shews the Importance of the Text, and the peculiar Regard that ought to be paid to it, on account of the weight and momentous Matter it contains; as the Word LORD is frequently printed in a different Character in English Editions, especially, when the Original is Febovab; not because it is not authentic, or not in the Original; but because of the Importance of the Word: Or rather, as the Publishers of the ancient English E. ditions inform us themselves, this and other Passages in Scripture were printed in a different Character, be. cause the Original is variously read in different Copies. without the least Infinuation, that they suspected the Authority of these Portions of Scripture, tho' printed in a different Character. Lastly, says he, " a Verse, " which the Editors of those Greek Copies, which " now have it in them, have not made it appear, that "they ever had any Greek Manuscripts by them, " which would justify such an Addition." The Fallhood of this appears from what has been already faid, that Erasmus, who put in this Verse into his third Edition, did it from the Authority of a Greek Manuscript, then in Britain; which was different from the Manuscript in Dublin, because they read the Verse differently. The Falshood of it will farther appear, from what Erasmus testifies concerning those, who published the Spanish Edition at Alcala des Henares, which has this Text, that they inferted this Text upon the Authority of a Manuscript sent from the Vatican*. And that Erasmus was not mistaken in this, seems more than probable, fince, as he also testifies, those, who published that Work, had an express Command from Pope Leo X. not to vary from that Vatican Manuscript; and confequently, fince they inferted this Text in their dition, it must have been in that Manuscript; otherwife they would have fo far varied from it, as to add an entire Verse, that was not to be found in it. More-

^{*} Exemplar ex eadem, ni fallor, Bibliotheca (scil. Vaticana) pete tum secuti sunt Hispani. Erasm. in loc.

hat is

hews

gard

ighty

Word

racter

nal is

In the Vord:

is E.

Mages r, be-opies,

d the

Verse.

which

r, that

them, e Falf-

y faid, d Edi-

fcript,

Manu-

rently.

ed the

has this

nd that e than

o pub-

n Pope

heir E-

other-

to add

More-

over,

ana) peti-

wer, it may appear to any Person, that will not shut his Eyes on purpose, that he may not see, that the Edition published by Rob. Stephens, which also has this Text, was supported with the Authority of several ancient Greek Manuscripts, which that learned Man had by him, as Beza testifies. Hunc versum, says he, legit Erasmus in Britanno codice, & extat in Complutensi editione, & in nonnullis Stephani veteribus libris. Non convenit tamen in omnibus inter istos codices; nam Britannicus legit sine articulis πατήρ, λόγος, ε πυεύμα, in nostris vero leguntur articuli; & præterea etiam additum erat Sansti Epitheton Spiritui. Beza in loc.

It will also not a little contribute to give satisfaction o any impartial Inquirer, that this Verse was not added to the Canon; but hath Authority enough from Greek Manuscripts that it is genuine: if we confider. hat Lorenzo Valla, a Roman Nobleman of great Learhing, who lived in the fourteenth Century, had no less han seven Greek Manuscripts by him, when he compar'd the vulgar Latin Version with the original Greek; and, with great Accuracy and Exactness, he marked in his Notes the most minute Difference between the two; and yet he takes no notice of any Difference beween the vulgar Version, which has this Text, and any of his Greek Manuscripts: so that it seems plain, this Verse was in them also; especially, if we consider, hat some of his Manuscripts had this first Epistle of fobn, and consequently they must have had also this Verse in them; otherwise it is hard to account for it, how so remarkable a Difference could well be omitted by him, without making an Observation upon it in his Notes. The Service-Book Apostolus, which contains these Portions of the apostolical Epistles, appointed to be read in the Greek Church, which, if it is not equivalent to a Manuscript, yet it is a satisfying Proof to any unbiassed Person, that this Text was reckoned a Part of the facred Canon by the Church, a thousand Years ago, and above, feeing this very Text is in that Ritual, appointed to be read on Trinity-Sunday; and feeing some of the Copies of that Ritual are above a thousand thousand Years old. The Muscovite Church, which is a Branch of the Greek, has also always had this Text in their Version; and it is read at the same time. as the Greek Church reads it in their Service. Thus we fee, how far this Letter is agreeable to, Truth, and that every Sentence it contains is a Falshood.

No more remains therefore with respect to it, but that I account for it, why I did not infert it among the other Letters, wrote to me by Mr. Platts. And the Reason in short is, that that Letter was never sent to me, during Mr. Platts's Life: It was a confiderable time after his Death, before it was brought to me; and I thought, I could not with Honour write against a Person, after he was dead, by answering it; and therefore thought fit neither to publish it, nor any Anfwer to it. Nor had I at this time taken any notice of it, but suffered the Ashes of the deceased Mr. Platts to lie quietly and rest in their Tomb, if the Author of the Remarks had not stirr'd in them, and made the Letter his own; and as his it is, I answer it: And I can hardly think, that the Remarker is so quite a Stranger to this Reason of my not publishing this Letter, as he pretends.

But I have fomething farther on this Affair to offer to the Reader, who perhaps will be curious to know how this Letter came to be kept fo long from me; and then what moved the Arians to help me to it, after Mr. Platts's Death, and fo long after it had been defign'd for me, even the space of two or three Months; for fo long was it after the Date of the Letter, before I received it. And in order to know the true Spring of this Letter's being delivered to me at all, it will be necessary to inform the Reader, that upon Mr. Platts's Death there was a flagrant Report spread thro' this Town, that Mr. Platts had renounced the Arian Herefy on his Death-bed; and that he had wrote a Letter of Recantation to me, but some of his Arian Friends, that were about him, had burnt it. What Truth was in this Report, I do not at all pretend to know; the Author of these Remarks knows best, whether

ther he

fuch t

there i

dreffec

this Pl

tain In again,

desirin

Letter

dreffe

gain;

me fro

could refusin

especia

the Le

was fo

be pre fhould

fon, c

as to l

Letter

even c gain t

Havir refus'e

of thr

dead, rian I

of his

when

plicati and w

ter of

Lette

very e

that h The I

me, t

was,

11ch

this

me,

and

but

the

the

able

me;

ainst

and

An-

ce of

r of the

nd I

tran-

r, as

offer

now

me;

been

iths;

efore

oring

ill be atts's

this?

He-

Let-

Arian

What nd to whether he was the Person that burnt that Letter, if any fuch there was, or not. But whatever be in this, there is one thing certain, that there was a Letter addressed to me from Mr. Platts, which the Arians in this Place had in their hands: And having had certain Information of this, I fent to the Person once and again, in whose Custody, I understood, it was lodged, defiring that he would be fo kind as to fend me the Letter from Mr. Platts that he had, which was addreffed to me. But this he refused to do again and again; but own'd, that he had a Letter addressed to me from Mr. Platts: and if he had not own'd it, I could have prov'd it. And I must own, that Person's refusing to send me a Letter, that was addressed to me, especially considering his Character, in whose hands the Letter was, made me a little suspicious, that there was fomething in it, that, the Arians thought, would be prejudicial to their Interest, if the Contents of it should be known. And I did not know, but a Person, or Party, that could be guilty of fo vile a thing, as to keep in their hands fo violently and unjustly, a Letter addressed to another Person, might be guilty even of burning it, if they thought it was necessary to gain the fame ends they proposed in keeping it up. Having fent twice for that Letter, and being as often refus'd, the Matter rested, I think, about the space of three or four Weeks: When Mr. Platts was now dead, and the Rumour of his having recanted the Arian Herefy being much talked of, and particularly of his having wrote a Letter of Recantation to me, when all of a fudden, without my making any Application to him, the Person, I had sent to so often, and who had so often refused to let me have that Letter of mine, he had in his hands, of himfelf brings this Letter; a part of which the Remarker has transcribed very exactly indeed: which to me makes it appear, that he is not altogether unacquainted with this Affair. The Person, who brought it, on delivering of it, told me, that the Reason, why he help'd me to it now, was, left I should think, it contain'd something, that it it did not contain. The Meaning of which I took to be, left I should think, that it was the Letter of Re. cantation of the Arian Herefy, wrote by Mr. Platts, which was commonly reported to have been wrote by him to me. I put the Question to him also, why he did not fend the Letter to me, when I fent so often to him for the Letter he had of mine before Mr. Platts Death. His Answer was, that he had express Orden from Mr. Platts not to fend it to me. From whence I had Reason to look upon that Letter, which he delivered to me, not as a Letter from Mr. Platts to me: fince I had not received it before his Death, as a Let ter from him; but on the contrary, he had given 0. ders not to deliver it to me. Now if I had printed a Letter of a Person's after his Death, a Letter, which he had ordered to be suppressed, and not to be deli vered to the Person to whom it was addressed, in the Circumstances the Remarker would not have failed notwithstanding the great Concern, he would have People believe, he has for the support of my Reput tion, to have told me of it; and would doubtless have improved it against me, if I had given such a hand to him. From the whole it appears to any impartia Person, that, if this Letter was suppressed, it was own ing to Mr. Platts, who ordered it not to be fent to me; or to the Arians, who had it in their custody and never delivered it to me, till after Mr. Platti The Letters, I printed, were all the Letters that past between Mr. Platts and me, during his Like And as for any other Letters, pretended to be his, which I had not an opportunity to answer in his Life-time and which were not delivered to me, till after is Death, and which, I was told, were appointed by the Person, that wrote them, not to be delivered to me, should have been highly to blame, if I had printed an fuch Letters, as this Author is highly to blame, charging me so unjustly with suppressing this Letter I should be glad to see the Remarker capable to via dicate himself as fully from being the Person, that so pressed the Recantation-Letter.

ote in anoth erfe in 's Libi feems herein, guess. ins to kamina ipt is oft his uthorit engas ion; I at a Po s, or I thefe c emarke Ir. Em s Anfw r prov at fome nd inde all exa etermin l that] roze's]

It fee

his L

Auth

a dub

learne

tho' r

for an

the I om th

Page

his Para hat Mr ook to

of Re

Platts,

ote by

vhy he

ften to

Platts

Orden

vhence

e deli-

o me;

a Let-

en Or nted a

which

oe deli.

n thefe

failed,

d have

Reputa-

ess have handle

partia

vas ow.

fent to

uftody,

Platts

Letters,

is Life, which fe-time

fter his

by the

o me,

ited any

ame,

Letter

to vin

Pag

Page 13th, the Author takes notice of a marginal ote in the last Page of my Book; where I say, there another Greek Manuscript, which has this seventh erfe in the body of the Text, in the King of Prof-Is Library at Berlin. By adding this marginal Note. feems to infinuate, my Reputation fuffers. But herein, according to his laudable Custom, we are left guess. He says indeed, that if I had been at the ins to confult Mr. Emlyn's Reply to Mr. Martin's ramination, I would have found, that this Manuipt is a downright Cheat. But here we must also of his bare Word, or at least we must depend on the uthority of Mr. La Croze. I am indeed asham'd to engag'd with a Person, that reasons after this faion; I blush to see a Man so weak, as to imagine; at a Point of this nature can be determined either by s, or Mr. La Croze's Authority. Such Arguments these cannot fail to differve his Cause. But as the emarker has thought fit to borrow nothing else from Ir. Emlyn's Reply to Mr. Martin's Examination of s Answer to his Differtation on this seventh Verse, r proving this Manuscript of Berlin to be spurious, it some Passages taken from Mr. La Croze's Letter, id indeed there is nothing else fit to be borrowed. I all examine how far his Authority can justly go in etermining this Point. And indeed I can hardly fee that Fairness and Ingenuity of Temper in Mr. La roze's Letters, that our Remarker boasts so much of. It feems very strange to me, fays Mr. La Croze in his Letter, that ever our Manuscript, a Book of no Authority, should be alledged in Confirmation of a dubious Reading, fince I have already discovered it to a great many learned Men, and even to the learned Mr. Martin himself, that this Manuscript, tho' much boafted of, and fold by a cunning Cheat for an ancient Book, is but a late Transcript from the Polyglot of the Complutensian Edition." Now om this Representation given by Mr. La Croze in his Paragraph of his Letter, one cannot fail to think, hat Mr. Martin had been in the King's Library at Berlin, and that upon the spot Mr. La Groze had Co. RAM shewed to Mr. Martin to his Conviction, that that Manuscript was a Transcript of the Complutensian Edition, by an ocular Inspection into, and a Compa. rison of the two Books; all which are downright Fall hoods. Mr. Martin never faw the Berlin Manuscript; he was fo far from being convinced, that it was fpu rious, that he has learnedly wrote in defence of its be ing genuine. And I cannot fee, that Mr. La Croze could have any other end in writing to his Friend, that he had shewed, even to Mr. Martin bimself, that this Manuscript was but a late Transcript from the Poh. glot of the Complutensian Edition, than to impose up. on the World, and to make them believe that Mr. Martin had given up this Manuscript as spurious, which is a most notorious Falshood; and Mr. Martin himself justly complains of this unfair Treatment, he met with from Mr. La Croze, Page 117, and 121, of Mr. Martin's Genuineness of the Text, &c. demon-Itrated.

Mr. La Croze also tells us in that Letter, that he, who has feen the Complutenfian Copy, has at the fame time feen the Berlin Manuscript. This is so plainly false, that I could mention above twenty various Readings, wherein the Berlin Manuscript differs from the Complutensian Edition, in that one Book of the Gospel according to Matthew; besides those, wherein it differs from it in other Parts of the New Teltament: and these are such Instances too, as could not flow from a Mistake of an illiterate Transcriber. 1 shall only instance in one, or two, that the Reader may have a Specimen of the Difference between the Berlin Manuscript, and the Complutensian Edition; and that he may fee, that the one could not be a Transcript of the other, as Mr. La Croze alledges: Matth. 5. 32. the Complutensian Edition has όπι ος αν απολύση; but the Berlin Manuscript has ότι τας ο απολύων: and it is so also, in no less than five of Stephens's Manuscripts; and in the Manuscript of Montfortius: so that one might rather think, that this was copied from Montfortius,

Iont forti om which utum. tion has S Expage e Camb undantl inst the ounce ag a ver ore con ge in M , then be con the Ye e Libra being a mom ied fron es. Th hich the ut he ca e from e dependial in Electric forms for the Author ad dor King's a lear to the Boome Boome n the Beions, a Examinate of the horizontal contract of the horizontal cont

Cafe is he fam without bout it,

Panicia

Iontfortius, or Stephens's Manuscripts, or from one, om which these were copied, than from that of Comutum. Again, Chapter 15. 22. the Complutensian Etion has έκραυγασευ αυτώ; but the Berlin Manuscript s eneager oniow aure; fo also has one of Stephens's, e Cambridge, and some others. From whence it is bundantly plain, that Mr. La Croze's Prejudice, ainst the Authority of this Text, has made him proounce against the Genuineness of this Manuscript, upa very superficial Examination. And I am the ore confirmed in this, when I reflect upon that Pafge in Mr. La Croze's Letter to a Gentleman of Ber-, then a Student in Divinity at Utrecht, with a view be communicated to Mr. Martin; in which he fays, the Year—upon coming to Berlin, I went to fee e Library; where they shewed me this Manuscript, being a thousand Years old; after having examined a moment, I maintain'd that it was modern, and coed from the Edition of the Bible of Cardinal Ximev. This is also observed in the same Letter, from hich the Remarker transcribes the preceeding Passage; ut he carefully omits this, because the World would te from it, that Mr. La Croze's Authority is little to edepended on in this Affair, fince he was fo superfial in Examination. Now if Mr. La Croze had not een so sudden in giving his Judgment, concerning he Authenticness, or Spuriousness of this Manuscript; ut had examined with that Care, that Mr. Ravius ad done, who was Keeper of this Library of the ling's at Berlin, he might with him have observed ear to two hundred different Readings only in that ne Book of the Gospel according to Matthew, wherethe Berlin Manuscript differs from the common Ediions, and the Complutensian Bible. But a moment's examination is enough, when a Man comes prejudiced, efore he examines; nay, no Examination at all in that Tase is necessary. And Mr. La Croze can pronounce he same hard Sentence against the Dublin Manuscript, vithout feeing it at all, or knowing any thing more about it, but that the shape of the Letters, as he imagines

d Co.
that tenfian ompa.

Falf. cript; s spuits be-

Croze

1, that at this Poly-

fe upt Mr.

Martin nt, he 21, of

at he,

olainly arious from of the herein Testald not

er. I Reader

n the ition;

Tran-Aattb.

: and Manu-

o that from

rtius,

to have feen them, copied in some Journal, or other, he knows not what, gives him reason to have the same Opinion of this Manuscript, that he has of that of Ber. lin. As to what Mr. La Croze fays farther, concer. ning the Whitishness of the Ink, and the Newness of the Parchment of this Manuscript, whereby it appears to him to be so very late a Work; it is sufficient to de monstrate the Weakness of this, if we consider, that other learned Men, who have feen this Manuscript, can diff cern no such thing about it. And they have a juster Claim to be believed than Mr. La Croze on this head, until it can be proved, that they were under as ftrong Prejudices to biass them in favour of this Manuscript. as I have proved Mr. La Croze to be under against it, on account, that it contains this Text in it of the fifth Chapter of the first Epistle of John, seventh Verle If the Whitishness of the Ink, and the Newness of the Parchment were so very evident, as Mr. La Croze pretends, what should have hid all this from Raviu, Spanbeim, Hendrichius, Tellius, Men of equal, if not fuperior Learning, some of them to Mr. La Croze; yet none of them could fee that in a long Course of Years, in which some of them perus'd this Manufcript, which Mr. La Croze could difcern in a moment. But I'm apt to think, this is more owing to the Disorder of his Mind thro' Prejudice, than to the Disorder of his Body, or the Weakness of his Eyes, he complains of in his Letter; that even he faw this Manufcript in a Light fo very different from other learned Men.

But our Remarker comes forward to the Consideration of the Doctrine, built on this Text; which is, that in the divine Essence there are three Persons, all on the same Level of Equality in the same divine Character; all of them equally bearing witness in Heaven 2dly, That notwithstanding there is a Trinity of Perfons in the divine Nature, yet nevertheless the Substance is by no means thereby multiplied; but it continues still to be one. His Remark here is, that I say, the Father, the Word, and the Spirit are Terms which ons; a ceffaril And ye by the Perfons blied to than th the div become call Per backwa as to vi Persons Person plied to they ar that. Confeq notratte pect to favs. Three: distinct Sense t make t Stance, fay, th which. not be spects a Person Sense. felf, tha

This is which tend. t diffine

and Su

no othe

which

which in Scripture denote three facred divine Perfons; and in that they are faid to be THREE, this necessarily implies a Distinction of Persons in the Deity: And yet, fays he, when I come to explain, what I mean by the word Persons; I do not mean, that they are Persons strictly in that Sense of the Word, as it is apblied to Men; but however, that it includes in it more han three Names; and implies, that each, poffeffing he divine Essence after his peculiar manner, thereby becomes a distinct Person; and that these Three, we call Persons in a proper Sense. This he calls talking backward and forward. This, he fays, is as much, as to fay, that they are three Persons, and distinct Persons in a proper Sense; yet not strictly Persons, in the Sense of the word Person, as it is applied to Men; that is, lays he, they are Persons, and they are not Persons; and yet they are Persons for all that. But how does this Remarker prove, that this Consequence flows from these Premises? No, he does not attempt to do that. They are mistaken, who expect to have a Reason from him for every thing he lays. His Reafoning runs thus; that, tho the eternal Three are owned to be Persons in a proper Sense, and diffinct Persons, yet if they are not Persons in the Sense that Men and others are Persons, even so as to make them diffinct Beings, and to be of a diffinct Substance, Nature, and Essence, this is no less, than to lay, that they are not Persons at all. The Fallacy of which lies in this abfurd Supposition, that there cannot be a Person in a proper Sense, that is not in all respects a Person, in the same strict Sense, that Men are Persons; that is to say, which is not a Person in such a Sense, as to have a Being or Substance proper to himlell, that no other Person shares with him in; and that no other Person is equally possessed of with himself. This is a most glaring Falshood; and yet it is that, which the Arian Scheme is built upon. For we contend, that the three Persons of the Trinity are proper distinct Persons; and yet none of them have a Being and Substance, which is so peculiar to himself, as that of Ber.

Oncer.
nefs of

Other,

ppears to det other an difjuster s head, strong script, against of the Verse, of the ze pre-

Ravius, if not

Croze; arfe of Manu-

a mo-

to the

is Mar lear-fideranich is, ns, all

e Chaleaven

of Pere Subconti-

I say,

which

the other divine Persons are not equally possessed of it, as he is. And it lies upon this Author to prove, or fome of his Tutors for him, that the one divine Being, Essence and Substance, with all its essential and necessary Perfections, subsisting in that threefold dif. ferent manner, as it does in the Father, Son and Holy Ghoft, is not capable to conftitute these Three, three diffinct proper Persons. It lies upon them to prove, that it is effentially necessary to a divine Person to have a Being, Nature, Substance, or Essence, so proper and peculiar to himself, as no other divine Person can fhare, partake, or be posses'd of that Being, Nature, Substance, or Essence equally with him. And I would have our Remarker run over his Authors again, fince he has nothing of himself to offer for the Proof of this: and see, if Dr. Clark, Mr. Jackson, Mr. Emlyn, Mr. Pierce, or the Author of the Sober Appeal, can furnish him with any Arguments for the proof of this; and, under the Conduct of divine Grace, I undertake to answer him. And if they are not able to do this, they will be brought to an absolute Necessity to give up the Cause, and to own, that it is an absurd Definition of a divine Person, which this Author, or any of his Tutors, gives in his 23d Page; one who has a Being and Understanding, a Will and a Power of Action proper to himself, and distinct from others; since it is possible for andivine Person to subsist, who has an Understanding, Will, and Power of Action, individually the fame with the Understanding, Will, and Power of Action of the two other divine Persons. For this is the very Point the Controversy turns upon; whether or not the divine Nature, Essence, or Substance, the divine infinite Understanding and Will, and the divine infinite Power of Action, and all other divine Perfections may subfift or not, in three distinct proper Persons, who are all equally posses'd of them; in three, I fay, divine Persons so distinct, and in such a Sense proper Persons, that some things, peculiarly belonging to Persons in a proper Sense, may be afferbet State ace, which is to peculiar to

ted of fo

But, his who word] butes, I own, gent A require word P or that the Fat Holy (their in Agency teous S namele all my the Per > in these Page Epithe Reason fiftent in Scri blind, not Re tion. God's withou to ther the Ma son fal vitiate but a]

> > his not all in

ment,

ticularl

shewed

ted of some of them, according to Scripture, that cannot in truth be affirmed of the two others.

l of

ve,

Be-

and

dif-

Toly

hree'

ove,

lave

oper

- Can

ture.

ould

fince

this;

Mr.

rnish

and,

ce to

they

re up

ition

of his

Being Ction

nce it as an divi-

and

rions.

pon;

Sub-

Will,

other

Stinct

hem;

n fuch

liarly

affer-

. ted

But, fays the Remarker, our Author himself, thro' his whole Performance, uses the word, meaning the word Person, not as denoting three Names, Attributes, Modes, or Relations, or the like. Very true, I own, I do fo. But, says he, three distinct intelligent Agents. If by this he means, as his Argument requires, that in any part of my Writings I use the word Person, as applied to any of the facred Three, or that in any part of my Writings I speak either of the Father, or of the Son, as he is God, or of the Holy Ghost, as being distinct from one another in their infinite Intelligence, or in their infinite Power of Agency, it is a downright Falshood, and an unrighteous Slander and Calumny. And I call upon this nameless Author to point out, in what Page of any of all my Writings I do fo. So far from this, that in all the Performances I have published, I have been particularly cautious on this head; and have carefully shewed, that Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, are one in these, as in all other effential Perfections.

Page 24th, he blames me, for abusing Reason with Epithets. My Words are these; when carnal Reason, Reason falsely so called, thwarteth, and seemeth inconfiftent with what is taught us, concerning this Doctrine in Scripture; in that Case we ought to subject our blind, vitiated, corrupted Reason, which indeed is not Reason, but a Pretence to it, to divine Revelation. Here he fays, but why must that, which is God's noblest Gift bestowed on Men, as being that, without which all his other Gifts would be of no use to them, be thus abused with Epithets? What! has the Man loft his Senses quite! Is carnal Reason, Reaion falfely so called, Reason, as far, as it is blinded, vitiated, and corrupted, which indeed is not Reason, but a Pretence to it; I say, is this the Gift of God, or his noblest Gift bestowed on us? Is this in most, or at all in any Case the Rule, or Measure of our Judgment, or Actions? Or is it not rather the Work of the Devil, a Work of the Flesh to be renounced, subdued and mortified? I readily own, that Reason, Reason, that deserves the Name, Reason justly so called, is a noble Gift of God, perhaps the noblest Gift bestowed on Men, except the Gift of his own Son, and the Benefits accompanying him: but, however high an Opinion I have of Reason, I do not agree with what, this Author teaches, in this and the next Paragraph very indistinctly, consounding the Faculty and Power of Reason, with the Principles of Reason; and making sometimes the Power and Faculty the Measure and Standard of Truth; and sometimes the Principles of Reason a Judge; which is very absurd.

the

I shall therefore endeavour to fet this Matter in a clear Light, and flew in what fense Reason is a Judge; and when it is the Standard and Measure of judging, Reason, when it is taken for the Power and Faculty of apprehending, taking up, and conceiving Ideas, and comparing them together, most certainly is that which judges, or passes Sentence in the Mind, concerning the Agreement, or Disagreement of these Ideas, apprehended and compared. It is this Power of the reasonable Mind, that determines, whether they are connected, or disjoined; and that whether these Ideas are fuch, as are revealed to us by a natural, or supernatural Revelation; and whether the Mind [proceeds] in passing its Sentence 'concerning these Ideas, their Agreement, or Disagreement upon a natural or supernatural Evidence. In both Cases, I say, it is the reafonable Mind that thus fits the Judge; apprehending, comparing, and determining this Agreement, or Difagreement, and pronouncing the Truth or Falshood of those Propositions set before it. That this may be clearer, I shall give an Example in both Cases. As to the Case of a Proposition naturally revealed, at ter the Mind has taken up, and apprehended the Subject and Predicate of the Proposition, then it compares them together; and if it sees Evidence enough, by comparing them immediately together, then it pronounces either that they agree, or difagree, either that known

ne Proj

Aind h

or its S

alls in

ompari

er able

Difagre

Mind, s to the

ural wa

ed the

entire

greem

ind, un he first

idence.

ions; a

aith, th

Power of pron-

ipon th

he Mir his kin

cording

Clearne

whatfor

oul, i cerning

ther in Mind I

tence c

position

if it pro

divine

it. Bi

which

the m

those I

fub.

alon,

o cal-

Son,

wever

agree

next

aion;

y the

es the

furd.

r in a

udge;

lging, aculty

Ideas,

is that oncer-

Ideas,

of the

ey are

Ideas

Super-

ceeds

their fuper-

ne rea-

or Dif-

Shood

nay be d, ate Sub-

npares

h, by it pro-

er that

Ift,

e Proposition is true or false: but if the reasonable find has not Evidence enough to lay a Foundation or its Sentence by an immediate Comparison, then it alls in the help of another more clear Idea, that by omparing the other two with this third, it may be beter able to pronounce concerning their Agreement or Disagreement: 10 that in this Case it is the reasonable Mind, that judges and fits passing Sentence. But 2 dly, s to the Case of a Proposition reveal'd in a supernaural way, after the Mind has conceived and apprehened the Subject and Predicate, the reasonable Power entirely at a loss, how to determine concerning their Agreement, or Disagreement in Propositions of that ind, until it call in the help of supernatural Evidence, he first and last, and only Resort of the Mind for Eidence, in order to judge in such kind of Proposiions; and this Evidence is the divine autos on, thus aith the Lord, in which Case, tho' the reasonable Power of judging before was absolutely incapable justly o pronounce Sentence either one way or another, yet pon the Evidence of this Witness, (the only Evidence he Mind can go upon in judging in Propositions of his kind) the judging Power pronounces Sentence acfording as this infallible Witness declares with all that Clearness and Satisfaction, that it can do in any Case whatsoever. Thus we see that Reason taken for the pprehending, comparing and judging Power of the boul, is that which passes Sentence in the Mind, conterning the Truth or Falshood of Propositions, whether in a natural, or supernatural way revealed. If the Mind proceeding upon natural Evidence passes Sentence concerning the Truth or Falshood of any Propolition, then it is faid to know it scientifically: but if it proceeds upon a supernatural Evidence upon the divine Affirmation, then it is properly faid to believe it. But there is another and more ordinary Sense in which the word Reason is taken, which is this; for the most part it denotes the Principles of Reason, those Maxims and Truths, that are discoverable and known by the Light of Nature; as for instance, when one one fays this or the other thing is contrary to Reafon, the Meaning is not, that it is contrary to the judging Power of the Mind; for it may be agreeable to this when it passes Sentence without, or contrary to Evi dence, even when it is contrary to the Principles and Maxims of Reason: but the Meaning is, that it is contrary to and inconfistent with some known Principle, or Maxim known by the Light of Nature. Now Res. fon taken for the Principles and Maxims of Reason is very different from that judging Power, that paffe Sentence in the Mind; it is only the Evidence, that the judging Power proceeds upon, when it judge 'Tis true, taken in this Sense, it may, and ought to be called the Measure and Standard of natural Truth: but it is far from being the Standard or Measure of reveal'd Truth. And therefore this Author blunders, and shews, that he is not Master of the Subject, that he is treating of, when he fays, that the Power of Reafon may not be the Standard of all Truth; for Reafon, as it is a Power and Faculty of the Mind, is the Measure and Standard of no Truth whatsoever. It must then be very flat to fay, as he does Page 25, it may possibly not be the Standard of all Truth, fince this supposes it to be the Measure and Standard of iome Truth. Reason indeed taken for the Principles and Maxims of Reafon may, and ought to be looked upon to be the Standard and Measure of natural Truth, as I hinted already. But the thing, that this Author feems to aim at, if he would fpeak up, is, that he would have Reason taken in this Sense to be the Standard, not only of natural, but even of reveal'd TRUTHS; which is a gross and wide Mistake, For Reason denoting and fignifying the Principles and Maxims of natural Reason, is neither the Judge in determining the Truth of any Proposition, nor the Evidence, Measure, Standard, or Rule, that the Mind goes by, when it judges of the Truth of fupernatural Propositions: it is only the Evidence, Standard, or Rule, that it goes by, when it judges of natural Propositions; and thus, saith the Lord, is the ole Standors by alfhood vay. Chinctly, ome bouf in this im special to N. Page livine I hose in upon the bad Meluded he prete Author make the words frit are count of and Global and an electric frit are count of the count of

Error,

be turn bis is f Place, that, ac
importa
in those
the Tru

ner of fhews t the Tr them, gratify

Mind the best; the ses in se

(27)

eason,

o this

Evi.

es and is con-

rciple, Rea-

asion is passes

that udges

ght to

of re-

f Rea.

r Rea-

is the

er. It

25, it

fince

ard of nciples

ooked

Cruth,

Author

hat he be the veal'd

istake,

ciples

Judge

nor

that

th of ience,

ges of

is the

fole

ole Standard, Measure, Rule and Evidence, that it oes by, in determining and judging the Truth, or alshood of Propositions, revealed in a supernatural vay. Our Remarker then would have talked more ditinctly, if he had borrowed this Distinction from ome body, as he does the Maxim from me, he speaks in this Page; for his being ignorant of it makes im speak on this Subject, as if he neither knew the ense, that the word Reason is taken in, nor the Ise that Reason serves in Matters of Revel A-

Page 26 and 27, he pretends a great Regard for the ivine Revelation; but this is common enough with hose in his way, when they have a Design to lead to Error, that they may so much the more easily impose pon the Unwary. And they learn this Lesson from bad Master; when he would most effectually lead eluded Sinners from the true Sense of the Scripture, e pretends Scripture for his Delusions. And here this Author would impose upon some Mens Weakness, and make them believe, that because it is not in so many words faid in Scripture, that the Father, Son, and Spiit are one God, the same in Substance, equal in Power and Glory, that therefore it is not a Truth of God, and an effential Article of the Christian Faith. be turn us, fays he, to any Passage of Scripture, where bis is said in so many words? Does he turn us to any Place, or Places, where this is expresty said? So that, according to him, no Truth can be counted an important and a necessary Truth, but what is reveal'd in those express Words in Scripture, that Men deliver the Truth in. This at bottom is to impeach the manner of God's revealing his Mind to Mankind; and it thews the dreadful Obstinacy of Sinners Hearts against the Truths of God, and their Aversion to receive them, that they require and demand, that God should gratify them, in that particular way of revealing his Mind to Mankind, that fuits them, and that they like best; they will have him to say in such and such Phrales in so many Words, and no more, nor no fewer, and Thus and Thus expressy, or they will give no credit to him. It is not enough, that he reveal his Mind clearly and plainly, concerning important Doctrines fo as that the meanest Capacity, divested of Prejudices may understand it: it is not enough, that he reveal his Mind concerning a necessary Article of Faith in fuch a manner, as is most fit to be a Standard of that necessary Truth to all Ages; and in such a way, as all fucceeding Ages may understand it clearly and fully after they have laid aside those things, that obstruct the Knowledge of God's Will. He must indulge them in this; and give them an express Revelation from Heaven in fo many Words, as that Article contains, which, in the Age they live, is proposed to them to be believed, as a necessary Article of their Faith: or otherwise they reckon themselves not bound to be lieve it; tho' it had never so clear and just a Foundation in the general Canon, or in the original Text which was defign'd to be the univerfal Standard of Fain for all Ages and Nations. Here I would have it care fully observed, that there is a necessity many times in different Ages to express an Article of Faith, which in Substance is the same, in a very different manner; that the Expressions in the Article may be suitably adapted not only to fignify a Sense, and carry in them a Meaning contrary to the particular Error, that is opposite to the Truth, contain'd in the Article; but particularly that it may be fuitably adapted to carry in it a Senle, and in a diffinct way to express the Truth, in a manner directly opposite to the Turn, that the contrary Error takes in any particular Age, and Period of the Church. For such is the Subtilty of Satan, when he finds it hard to make an Error take in one shape, he imploys his Instruments and Agents to throw it into another, that is most apt to take, according to the Humour of the present Age. Now whatever the fundamental Error may be, that in any Age may be broached; and whatever may be the shape, that that Error may be thrown into, it may be eafily discerned by any honest Mind, that that Error is contrary to Scripture

Scripture aid dow fufficient o whate Wifdom y Age, y Error hat it n he Strei enough t of vario hrown would b Age, fu same L various every A all by th tural Li ence of be obtain of my we explanate to infinitions, be of a Men as ly to in fion, that of the state of the state no great prove Confeq appear.

In the

manner is dedu

no Pro

Cre.

Mind

ines,

ices,

eveal

th in

that as all fully,

Arud dulge

ation

con-

them

aith:

o be-

Text,

Faith

care-

nes in ich in ; that

lapted

Meanfite to

ularly

Sense,

man-

of the

nen he

pe, he it into

to the

ne fun-

at that cerned ary to ipture,

scripture, and the general Canon, and original Rule, aid down in the Word; and in any Age that Rule is inflicient to discover the Crookedness of the Error, into whatever shape it may be thrown. Yet the divine Wisdom thought fit, not to give a Revelation in evey Age, that in so many express Words condemns every Error, whether fundamental or not, in every shape, that it may be thrown into by the Subtilty of Satan: he Streightness of the Rule laid down in the Word is enough to a reasonable Being to discover all the Curves of various Shapes, that any Error can possibly be hrown into by Satan and his Instruments. So that it would be quite in vain to give a Revelation in every Age, fuch as in fo many express Words, and in the fame Language too, should point out particularly the various Curves, and crooked Meanders of Error in every Age and Nation. One streight Rule laid to them all by the help of Grace, and a due Exercise of the natural Light, God has given to Men, under the Influence of this Grace, ferves all the Purposes that could be obtained by fuch a Revelation.

In these Pages also he complains, that I and others of my way look upon the Doctrine of the Trinity, as we explain it, to be a Doctrine of high Importance; notwithstanding it is only, as we own, drawn from the Scripture by Consequence. Where he seems not only to infinuate, but expresly to affirm, that those Propofitions, that are only drawn by Consequence, cannot be of any high Importance; and be bound upon all Men as Articles of Faith. The Design of this is plainly to infinuate, and to deceive People into a Persuasion, that Arianism is a harmless thing; and the Denial of the true and supreme Deity of our Saviour, is of no great importance: and all this they endeavour to prove from this, that this is a Doctrine deduced by Consequence. But the Falseness of this Reasoning will appear, if we confider, that the first Principle of all manner of Religion, whether natural or supernatural, is deduced by Consequence: And therefore it can be no Proof of an Article's being of little consequence, that we come to the knowledge of it by Inference, Reasoning, and Argumentation. No Man can prove the Being and Existence of the Supreme Being, but by Inference and Argumentation: and therefore, fince the first Principle, and most essential, and fundamental Article of all Religion, is known that way, it is but a weak and lame Argument to prove a Doctrine not to be fundamental, because it is discovered and known by Deduction and Inference. But here they farther object, that this Doctrine of the supreme Deity of Je. fus Christ, is but drawn by remote Consequence; and therefore is not, nor cannot be of high importance, To which I answer, that the Truth of the supreme Deity of Jesus Christ is drawn by as near a Confe. quence from his being the Creator of all things, (John 1. 3.) as that fundamental Doctrine of all Religion, that there is a supreme Being at all, does flow from the Dependance of all things upon him by Crea-And if the meanest Capacity is able to comprehend, that there is, and must be a supreme Being, be cause all things were created by him, and depend upon him, it may with the same ease discern, and comprehend, that Jesus Christ is, and must be that same in preme God: the Consequence is no wider, nor no remoter in one Case than the other. And tho' private Christians, or Bodies of Christians, met in Synods and Councils, have no Authority to oblige others to be lieve any thing as a Truth, whether they discern, that it flows by a just Consequence, or not; and see it to bea Truth, or not, merely because they say, it is a Truth; yet their faying, it is a Truth, and proposing and holding it forth as such, does not make it a Falshood, or loose our Obligation to receive it as a Truth. Which yet, one would think, the Libertines of this day did indeed believe; because they set themselves so much to deny every thing, that has been formerly believed by the largest Bodies of Christians, Synods and Councils; as if the Determination of Councils turn'd a Truth to 1 Falshood, and altered the nature of the thing. molt nost cer f any oncerni with the Doctrin orth by Word, believed tanding t be rec et for a rine, w n a way Doctrin ot rece amenta prace it, Finally, he true. us Chri Bubstance

Error, not; and or not. erroneous and not hat white uftly ranke.

of this maintai pecause Authori Langua the Document of the prints, I fons, u these D Arius u ence,

prove

ut by

ce the nental

s but

e not nown

arther

of Je.

; and

tance.

oreme

Conse.

hings,

Reli-

s flow

Crea-

mpre-

g, be upon

mpre-

ne fu-

no re-

rivate

ds and

o be-

, that

to be a

ruth;

olding

se our

t, one

ed be-

deny

y the

ls; as h to a

But

most

nost certainly, whatever be the particular Explication f any Person, or any Church, Synod, or Council, oncerning any Doctrine, if fuch Explication accords with the Scripture, and carries nothing in it, but the Doctrine contained in the Word, such Doctrine held orth by any Person, or Church, being conform to the Word, is binding on the Conscience; and ought to be believed, tho' it should have been of never so long tanding in the Church: and the contrary Error, tho' t be recommended with the advantage of Novelty, is et for all that to be rejected. Moreover, if the Docrine, which is explain'd by any Person, or Church, n a way conform to the Scriptures, be a fundamental Doctrine, they are most certainly Hereticks, who do ot receive it. Nor will the Prevalency of fuch funlamental Error, or the Multitude of those, that emrace it, excuse, or vindicate them from that Charge. finally, if the particular Error be the Denial of the he true, proper, and supreme Deity of the Lord Jeus Christ, and that he is not the same, but a different ubstance from the Father, such, who embrace that Error, are Arians; whether they like the Name, or not; and whether they embrace it on Arius's Authority or not. Let them pretend never fo much to take their erroneous Sentiments on that Point from the Bible, nd not from Arius; yet, since it is his Doctrine, and hat which hath no Foundation in the Word, they are uftly ranked among his Followers, and called by his Name. And it is exceeding ridiculous for the Arians of this day to renounce Arius's Name, while they naintain his Doctrine; and pretend not to be Arians, because they do not believe Arius's Doctrine upon his Authority. Would they alter the common Use of Language and Speech? Calvinists no more maintain he Doctrines of the Gospel, which the great Mr. Calvin so strenuously defended against Atheists, Deists, Arians, Papists, and other heretical and erroneous Perons, upon his Authority; or because he maintain'd hese Doctrines, than Arians maintain the Doctrines of Arius upon his Authority, or because he maintained them : yet the Calvinists patiently bear their being called fo; nay they glory and triumph in it, that fo great a Champion for the Truths of the Gospel was raised up at the Reformation; and are not ashamed of his Name, more than they are of his Doctrine. And, if the Arians are ashamed of the Name of Arius, let them renounce his Blasphemies, and heretical Doc. trines, otherwise they are like to bear his Name. Itis fit a Spade should be called a Spade.

I had alledged for proof of a Plurality of Personsin the divine Essence these following Scriptures, Gen. 1. 26.—3. 22.—11. 7. Here the Remarker owns. that the Father is addressing himself to his own Son, Page 29. But, fays he, how does this prove, that this Person, or these Persons, here spoken to, areequal with the Father in all divine Perfections and Glory. If the Remarker had been ingenuous and honest in his Remarks, he might eafily have feen, from what I say Page 94 of my Sermons, that that Phrase, Let m make Man, cannot be understood of the Angels; and none can be understood by it, as addressed to, but those, who are capable of the Work of Creation, to wit, the Son and Holy Ghost: and therefore, since these two Persons are capable of that Work of Creation, which is a Work peculiar to supreme Deity, and fince that Work is ascribed to them both in several Places of Scripture, as I have proved largely, and fince they are addressed there in these Texts mentioned, as Co-workers with the Father in the Work of Creation, it follows to a Demonstration, that these Persons are equal with the Father, on account of their being each of them Creator; and, if Creator, then possess'd of all divine Perfections, and confequently equal with the But, fays he, the Pfalmist plainly ascribes the commanding Part in the Creation to the Father, Pfalm 148. 5. and he should have added, to the Father only, exclusive of the Son and Holy Ghost, in order to make his Argument good. This indeed he infinuates, when he fays farther; and if that belonged only to bim, to wit, the commanding Part in the Precepti how low do t ruage, U ine Effe he same impuden much A Creation Father, ny of th he think Argume s speaki HAVOH No, the

> Again ons in t faid, Th band, tr fays the head of because high Go Mediato as he is the Fat equally t

The i the fupi Pfalm, in that of his hi 98th of my Serr

Agai who is t mand o the Fat at the (luprem Pudenc

(33)

now do the Places alledged, and the Form of Lanruage, used in them, prove three Persons in the dime Essence, all in the same Level of Equality, all in he same divine Character? But is it not astonishing impudence in this Man to affert, or infinuate with fo much Affurance, that the commanding Part in the Creation is in that Pfalm fo afcribed to Jenovan the Father, as to exclude JEHOVAH the Son? Can he, or my of the Arians, alledge any Proof for this? Does he think, that I would overlook this Failing in his Argument; and take it for granted, that that Pfalm s speaking of Jehovan the Father, exclusive of Je-HOVAH the Son, and JEHOVAH the Holy Ghost? No, the Praise ascribed to Jenovan therein belongs equally to each of the Three.

Again, from Psalm 110, I prove a Plurality of Perons in the Unity of the divine Essence; where it is laid, The Lord said to my Lord, fit thou on my Rightband, till I make thine Enemies thy Footstool. How, lays the Remarker, does this prove the supreme Godhead of him, who is thus exalted by another? Answer, because he is David's Lord, therefore he is the most high God. And his being exalted by another, as he is Mediator, does not detract from his effential Glory, as he is the supreme God, the same supreme God with the Father. See the full Proof of this, Page 96th of my Sermons.

eing

it fo

Was

d of

Ind,

, let Doc.

It is

nsin

n. 1. wns,

Son,

that

re e-

Glo-

onest

what et us

and

but

n, to

fince

Cre-

, and

veral

fince

d, as

tion, s are each

d of

h the cribes ther,

ather

order

nsinu-

1 only

cepti

how

The same Answer will serve to that Objection against the supreme Deity of Christ, founded on the 45th Pfalm, 6 and 7 Verses. For, tho' the Father is said in that Psalm to be his God, yet it is in respect only of his human Nature; as is more fully cleared, Page 98th of my Sermons.

Again, says the Remarker, is he the supreme God, who is worshipped by the Authority, and at the Command of another? Here I would ask the Remarker, if the Father's being worshipped by the Authority, and at the Command of the Son, makes him not to be the supreme God? And I hope, he will not have the im-Pudence to fay, that the Son hath not Authority to command command us to worship the Father. Doubtless both the Father and the Son have each of them a Right to supreme divine Worship, as being both of them post sess'd of supreme divine Excellencies: but the Father's commanding the Son to be worshipped with the same supreme divine Worship, with which he is worshipped himself, no more degrades him from his supreme Deity; than the Son's commanding the Father to be worshipped with supreme divine Worship, degrades him from his supreme Divinity. They are both on a level in this respect, as they are in all other respects as to their essential Glory.

F

Page 30th, as to what I say in respect of the Faith Hope, and Trust, which we are to repose in Christ, he asks; how does this infer, that he is the supreme God? He might have feen the Answer to this in Page 101 of my Sermons, if he had been willing to remark it; where I shew, that the Blessing is entailed only on those, who trust in Jehovah; and they are denounced curfed, whose Heart departs from him; and if Jeho val only is to be trufted in, I think, the Confequence is easy; that the supreme God only is to be trusted in: and if we are commanded to trust in Christ, as I there prove we are, and in Pages 324 and 327 of my Setmons; it follows as clear as Noon-day, that Jefus Christ is Jehovah, the supreme God. Now the Remarker ought to have offered something to shew the Absurdity of this Consequence. But seeing in his usual way, he contents himself merely to tell us, that we may trust him for Life, without supposing him to be the supreme God; I conclude, he has nothing to offer to support what he affirms. It might have been expected, he would have shew'd, that it was consistent with the Perfections of the Father to fend one, who was not by Nature God, the true and supreme God, to be the Object of Sinners Trust; since the Weight of my Argument lies in this, that it was inconfiftent with the Perfections of the Father to employ one as Mediator, and consequently the Object of Sinners Trust; who is not God, the supreme God, as well as Man; rust is,
to wha ill not g
Page 3
rder to at there at in th ore that ue; wha ot direct nce. V y other ffence: ofe Tex ty of the lurality exts, w ne Perfe

g weak

hy show

11s, (viz

iced to ould co of Per rove the ys he, it oken of y for the hether at does true G have pr nd the Sod; an

because

ecause that would be to transfer the highest Act of apreme divine Worship, as the Act of Faith and rust is, to one, who is not the supreme God, contrato what God has declared himself, that his Glory he ill not give to another.

both

ht to

pol.

thers

fame

ipped

Dei-

Wor.

s him

level

as to

Faith,

Christ,

preme Page

emark

aly on

Jeho-

quence

ted in:

I there

y Ser-

Jesus

ne Re-

ew the

is usual

hat we

to be

o offer

en ex-

nsistent e, who

e God,

ight of

Media-

Trust;

Man; pecause

Page 31st, upon the various Texts, I adduce, in der to prove the Unity of the divine Essence, and at there is but one God only, he has this Remark; at in them all there's no hint, that this one God is ore than one Person. Now let us suppose this to be ue; what follows from hence? Sure no more than is, (viz.) that these Texts of Scripture, that are adiced to prove the Unity of the divine Essence, do ot directly prove a Plurality of Persons in that Esnce. Very true, nor did I ever adduce them for ay other purpose; but only to prove the Unity of the sence: but it does not therefore follow, because ofe Texts, which I adduced for the Proof of the Uty of the divine Essence, do not directly prove the lurality of the divine Persons, that therefore other exts, which I adduced to prove the Plurality of dine Persons, do not prove that Point. It is exceedg weak in this Man to reason after this manner. Thy should he expect, that Texts, advanced for no her end, but to prove the Unity of the Essence, ould contain in them a Proof also of the Pluraliof Persons? It is enough, that they sufficiently ove the Point they were advanced to prove. But, ys he, that one God, this only true God, is all along oken of as one Person. To this I answer, that when ly of the particular Persons of the Trinity in any ext is faid to be the one God, or only true God, that articular Person is spoken of, as one Person only, hether it be the Father, Son, or Holy Ghost: but at does not hinder, but the Term one God, and ontrue God, may be affirmed of several Persons. And have proved in many Places, that both the Father, nd the Son, and Holy Ghost, is this one only true od; and that that Worship is ascribed to each of nem, and those Works were performed by them, which proves each of them to be this one only true God. Nor does it at all contradict this, that when a ny of the Persons is said to be the true God, that Person is spoken of as one Person only; for so it ought to be, when either the Father, or the Son, or Holy Ghost, say of themselves, they are the true God, each of them may say, I am the only true God; and yet for all that the other two are no less that same only true God also.

Fa

When I cite 1 Cor. 8. 4, 5, 6. There is no other God but one; for the there be, that are called Gods, whether in Heaven, or in Earth, as there be Gods many, and Lords many; but to us there is one God: Here he finds fault with me, that in the Citation, I stop at these words, one God, and do not cite also the following words of the Verse. A small share of Sagacity might have discovered to this Gentleman the Reason, why stop at these words, one God, because I am there proving the Unity of the divine Essence; and therefore the following words would have been impertinently cited. But I can affure him, I did not omit the rest of the Verse for any other Reason; for I think, they are very useful in proving a very important Point, (viz.) that the Lord Jesus Christ is the same true God with the Father; and when I have occasion to prove that Point, among other Texts I adduce the following words of this Verse, To us there is one Lord Jesus Christ, by whom are all things, and we by him. Will the Remarker say, that to us Christians there is but one Lord, viz. the fecond Person Jesus Christ, and exclude the Father from being the Christians Lord? hope, he will not. If he does not then exclude the Father from being the Christian's Lord, notwithstanding the Apostle says expresly to us, there is - one Lord Jesus Christ; I would ask him, for what Reason he excludes the Son from being the one God equally, as the Father is, when the Apostle says, to us there is one God, even the Father? If the same Form of Speech have an exclusive Force in the first Part of the Verse;

ose it in Page 3 Mence t Vby calle ays he, y; for it he Word God, no he Unit verfy wi ins at all livine E of divine with resp is is tra fantive Texts th whom th here be ity, all ence. a brisk A been cha the Scri rality of how ma Sermon cluding 3. 22.answere that thi tering] tempt t hands l

tance w

and fw

ever is mean 1

erse; I

terse; I would ask the Remarker, how it comes to ofe it in the last?

true

n a.

Per-

ught

Holy

each d yet

only

God

ether

and finds

thefe

wing

night vhy I

pro-

efore

ently

e rest

oint,

God

wing

Felus

Will

d ex-

1 ! b e the

stan-

eason

ially,

ere 15

eech

erfe;

Page 32, he endeavours to prove, that in the divine Mence there is but one Person, from Matth. 19. 17. Vby callest thou me good? there is none good, but one eis, ays he, one Person. But here he blunders wretchedv; for it is not είς πρόσχημα, or είς πρόσωπου; but as he Words are expresly read in the Verse, is o beos, one God, not one Person, as he translates it. And as to he Unity of the divine Essence, we have no Controversy with him, or any Man; nor are the Trinitarims at all pinched here in maintaining the Unity of the livine Essence, notwithstanding they hold a Trinity f divine Persons. The above Answer will also serve with respect to all those other Texts, he mentions, where is translated by him one Person, whereas the Subfantive agreeing in each of them to sis is $\theta sos,$ as the Texts themselves abundantly make appear; and besides whom there is no other God; tho' in that Godhead here be three Persons, all on the same Level of Equaity, all Sharers of the same divine Nature and Eslence. In the end of this Page, the Remarker puts on a brilk Air, and tells me, that I and my Friends have been challenged once and again to shew, where, in all the Scriptures, God is spoken of, as including a Plurality of Persons. Sure this Man cannot be ignorant, how many Texts I advance, Page 93 and 94 of my Sermons, which prove that God is spoken of, as including a Plurality of Persons; see Gen. 1. 26.-3. 22. 7. which he ought particularly to have answered, before he had taken the liberty to infinuate, that this has never been shewed. But I take his blustering here to be nothing else, than an impudent Attempt to impose upon the Weakness of those, in whose hands his Remarks may fall; who have no Acquaintance with this Controversy, and are ready to take in, and swallow down, without any Examination, whatever is faid upon the Arian fide of the Question: A mean Artifice indeed for one to use, who pretends to be be a fincere Inquirer after Truth; however worthy of this Gentleman and his Friends it may be.

Page 34, we are told, that it hath been undeniably proved, that, if there be three equally supreme, I suppose, he means Persons, as his Argument requires. on the same Level of Equality, even, tho' these three are united in the same Substance, there must be three co-ordinate Gods. Now here indeed is the Pinch of the Controversy; and if the Arians can prove this, they carry their Point to be fure. But I could never yet see it done, and I despair ever to see it, for the Reason I have given in my Sermons, (viz.) in that the divine Nature and Essence is capable of subsisting after a manner, that we cannot comprehend; and does necessarily subsist so: and, since it is revealed, that the divine Perfections and Attributes, essential to the Deity, are ascribed to Three; it is from thence plain to a Demonstration, that there are three, that is three Persons, possess'd of the divine Nature and Essence. But, he says, if I will maintain three distinct Persons, to whom personal Characters, and personal Actions can be applied, all equal, and supreme, on the same Level of Equality; I do of necessity, and in just confequence maintain three supreme Gods. As for that Expression, three supreme Persons on the same Level of Equality, it is by a Trick, common to this Remarker, and those of his way, unjustly infinuated to be what I maintain: the Expression is none of mine; and he ought to have cited the Page, where it is to be found, before he charged me with it. What I maintain is, that there are three distinct Persons, to whom personal Actions and Characters are applied all on the fame Level of Equality, all equally the same one supreme God, and equally posses'd of the same divine Nature and Essence, and all divine Perfections, essential to the divine Nature: which is far from maintaining three supreme Gods; it is only to maintain three equal Persons in the one supreme Godhead. But, says the Remarker from his Authors, no supposed Union of Substance, Nature, or Essence, to which no Actions, personal

Propriet

its follow

three fu

thing in the three divine I proved a

on the o

Godhead

n the F

of these

ays a F

being af

indeed a

upposes

nd afte

Holy G

or Effen

ers afcr

tracted

one or o

Son, or

ure and he part

Holy C

n them

when t

bstract

persona

telligib

ty of L

Page telling

orintel

preme,

Domin Suprem

ration

and Su

y of ably

e, 1

res,

hree

this,

ever

the

that

ting

does

that

the

plain

three

ence.

fons,

tions

fame

con-

that Level

Re-

tobe

ine;

to be

nain-

hom

n the e fu-

ivine

ffen-

tain-

three

fays

on of

ions,

10

personal Characters can in any intelligible Sense, or Propriety of Language be applied, can guard against ts following, from what I maintain, that there are three supreme co-ordinate Gods. This is the very hing in question; for we affirm, that the Union of he three Persons of the Trinity in one Godhead, or livine Effence, which I have not only supposed, but proved abundantly, secures from Tritheism. And yet in the other hand, the subsisting of this one undivided Godhead, and divine Essence, in a different manner n the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, by which each of these Three are constituted distinct proper Persons, ays a Foundation for personal Actions and Properties being ascribed to this divine Nature and Essence; not ndeed abstractly considered, as the Remarker absurdly upposes; but confidered, as subsisting in the way ind after the manner, as it does in the Father, Son, or Holy Ghost: for altho' the divine Nature, Substance, or Essence cannot have personal Actions, or Characers ascribed and applied to it, if it be considered abtractedly from the manner of its Sublistence, some one or other of the ways, as it subsists in the Father, Son, or Holy Ghost; yet when this same divine Naure and Effence is confidered, as fubfifting in any of he particular ways, as it does in the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, by which different ways of its Subsistence n them, they are constituted distinct Persons; I say, when the divine Nature and Essence is not considered bilitractly but thus subsisting in a particular manner, personal Characters and personal Actions may very intelligibly be ascribed to it, and in the greatest Propriey of Language may be applied to it.

Page 35th, the Remarker introduces one of his Authors tellingus, that to suppose one or two more such Persons, or intelligent Agents, equally possessed of the same suppose, absolute, natural, independent Authority and Dominion over all, must of necessity make two, or three supreme Gods; nor, says he, would it make any Alteration in the Case to suppose them united in Essence and Substance. Now this seems to be a very great

Blunder

Blunder in the Author of the Observations on D W-d's second Defence; for their being united Substance and Essence, they come thereby to be uni ted in infinite Intelligence, in absolute and supreme Da minion, and in all effential divine Perfections; and therefore all equally the supreme God. But, fays he farther, indeed it is a Contradiction in Terms, to fup pose more than one Person absolutely supreme, since there can be no Communication of Supremacy at all But, pray, why can there be no Communication of Supremacy at all, fince there can be a Communication of the fame Essence and Substance? If that can be communicated, and all the three Persons of the Tinity may partake of it, and be possessed of it in common, (for that is all, that can justly be meant by the Communication of the divine Essence; but to far that the divine Effence can be communicated, that is derived, is a downright Contradiction:) they may a fo, by the fame Parity of Reason, be posses'd of & premacy in common. And they cannot but be fo; for to partake of the divine Essence carries in it of consequence, a being possessed of all those Excellencies and Perfections, that in the nature of the thing no ceffarily accompany the Poffession of that Essence, or divine Nature; of which that of absolute and independent Supremacy is ONE.

Again, we have another Citation from Philal. Contab. Page 36th, nothing is plainer, fays he, than that if the one God and Father of all is not alone Supreme, that is, the only Person, that is the supreme God, it cannot be at all supreme. Why not, seeing the other two Persons are possessed of the same divine Essence with the Father, and confequently of the same divine Excellencies, whereof Supremacy is one.

Again, Page 36, fays he, if two or three Persons are supreme, equal in every thing, it is evident, none of them are supreme in any thing. If this, says he, is not Demonstration, there is no such thing in nature How this is a Demonstration is not easy to comprehend; I should think, the very reverse is the plained Demonstration qual in qual in e at the er, on Persons of reme C livine P Perfons n every ibly con o comp t withou Page : fferts w ide of the hem, I turacy o

Demonf

nore tha withstan But seein not fo t Scriptur nity, I notice o drawn f

In th apon the Being, uled in nificatio ness and Places, 1 Gender, of the S that this here in wor en, t Sense re Supply Demonstration in nature; for if they be supreme, and qual in every thing, they doubtless are supreme and qual in every thing; or else a thing may be, and not be at the same time. Pray, think again, Mr. Remarter, on your plain Demonstration; how can the three Persons of the holy Trinity be each of them the supreme God, as Philalethes makes the Supposition, and living Persons equal in every thing; and those divine Persons at the same time each of them not be supreme n every thing, wherein the divine Supremacy can possibly consist? Methinks, it needs no depth of thought o comprehend such a Demonstration; one may reach t without the help of a Tutor.

Page 37, 38, the Remarker, as is common with him, afferts without any Proof, that the Fathers are of his ide of the Question. If he had cited any Proof from hem, I should have taken notice of it; tho the Acturacy of their Expressions cannot be defended always, more than some of our modern Divines, who are notwithstanding upon the Orthodox side of the Question. But seeing he agrees with me, Page 39th, that it is not so material, what their Opinion is, as what the Scripture reveals concerning the Doctrine of the Trinity, I shall make it my business, to take particular notice of what, he objects against my Arguments, drawn from thence.

n D

ted i

e uni

ne Do

; and

ays he

to fup.

fince

at all,

Cation

an k

Tri

com.

by the

hat is,

of Su

e lo;

it of cellen-

ng ne-

lepen-

. Can-

n that

reme,

other

Mence

divine

erions

none

he; is ature

mprt-

lainet ration In the same Page he observes, that my Criticism apon the word so, which I translate one Thing, one Being, one Essence, is not just; because this word is used in several Places, where it cannot have that Signification. But here the Remarker discovers his weakness and want of Skill in Criticism; for the, in the Places, he mentions, another Substantive of the Neuter Gender, than phua is necessary to be supplied, because of the Sense, yet that does by no means hinder, but that this is the only Substantive, that can be supplied here in this Text: for where it is said, John 17. 11.

G

be that planteth, and be that watereth, in sion, the Sense requires, that ofyavor should be supply'd, one Instru. ment in the hand of God to carry on his Work in the Souls of Men, aiming at the fame end: but here the Senfe requires, that phua should be understood. tho' Beza thought otherwise, yet his Authority is not a fufficient Argument against the Reason, that I have elsewhere advanced; because μαρτύριου cannot be the Substantive agreeing to Ev, on account of the Variation of the Phrase in the next Verse; where the Apostle de. figning to express an Agreement in testimony, he does not say, as in this Verse, or their en ein, but or their is το εν είσι: Here this Gentleman should have accounted for the Variation of the Phrase, if he had a remarking Faculty, because the Strength of my Argument lies here, by some better Method, than telling us, that this is not the Reading, according to fome Copies: he should have shew'd, that this Variation of the Phrase is not, nor cannot be the just Reading, in order w make his Argument good against mine. Nor does my Interpretation of in, one Being, one Essence, at all disagree to the Context; for, if the second Person of the Trinity be one Being, and one Essence with the Father, his Testimony, as a distinct Person, must be of equal Veracity with his; for fince he has the same Essence with the Father, he must have that same effential Perfection of divine infallible Veracity with him; and consequently his Testimony to the Truth of the Christian Religion must go as far; and therefore Christianity acquires the Authority of another infallible heavenly Witness to attest it; to prove the Truth of which is the acknowledged Scope of the Place.

Page 42, he endeavours to invalidate my Argument for the supreme Deity of the Son and Holy Ghost, and their being one in Essence with the Father; and that these three Persons are all on the self-same Level of Equality from the baptismal Charge given to the Disciples to baptize in the Name of the Son, and Holy Ghost, as well as in the Name of the Father. That this is an incontestible Proof of the Equality of the Son argehis Aut herefore FORCE omewh Objectie raifes h he fame he Son I think, ter, as able Pro with the ter, he wife be Heaven higher fuprem Author volunta God an

nd Hol

fore he whit as Ghost to profecu Person ther and by the A sirial marker

Grace,

and H this: f Person preme from t

to the feende pofes of

(43)

nd Holy Ghoft, with the Father, I have proved at arge-from Page 115 to 120 of my Sermons, which his Author has not the affurance to contradict; and herefore I hold him as standing convicted of the FORCE of my Arguments. And I must say, it is omewhat strange to see him at a loss to get over an Objection, that has fo little in it, as that which he raifes here against the Son's and Holy Ghost's being he same supreme God with the Father; (viz.) because the Son fays, that all Power is given him, &c. which, think, tho' it infers his having an inferior Character, as Mediator, to the Father; yet it is an undeniable Proof, that he is also possess'd of the same Essence with the Father; and that, as to his effential Character, he is on a level with him; for he could not otherwife be capable of having all Power lodged in him in Heaven and Earth, as Mediator; unless he had a higher Character, and was by Nature and Effence the supreme God. It must be exceeding weak then in this Author to infer, because our Saviour declares, that he voluntarily undertook the Office of Mediator *twixt God and Man, and in profecution of the Purposes of Grace, took on him the Form of a Servant, that therefore he has no other or higher Character. It is every whit as weak to infer the Inferiority of the Holy Ghost to the Father, as this Author does, because in profecution of these same Purposes of Grace, this third Person voluntarily condescends to be sent by the Father and Son, in order to apply the Grace purposed by the Father, and purchased by the Son for Sinners. A small Degree of Sagacity would have ferved the Remarker to apply the Level of Equality both to the Son and Holy Ghost with the Father notwithstanding of this: for this voluntary Condescension in these two Persons does no more detract from their original supreme effential Dignity, than it would have detracted from the Dignity of the Father, if it had appeared fit to the eternal THRES, that he should have condescended to act that part in prosecution of the Purposes of Grace, which either the Son or Holy Ghost act. G 2

Level to the Holy That he Son

and

ense

dru-

the !

the

And

s not have

the :

ation

e de-

does

213 213

inted

t lies

pies:

hrase

er to does

ce, at

erion

with

must as the

fame

with

Truth

refore

allible

uth of

ument Ghost,

; and

act. And it is owing entirely to this Author's not remarking this fufficiently, that he blunders fo much in a thousand Instances. And I should be glad to see some Reason advanced to prove, that the Father could not, without detracting from his original underived Independency, condescend to act a ministerial Part, as well as the Son and Holy Ghost; if it was o. therwise suitable to the Scheme of Life; I say, I should be glad to fee this proved by fome Arguments: for I affure Mr. R _______n, I will not take his bare word for it.

Page 45 he tells us, that the Scripture has not faid a word of the metaphysical Nature, Essence, or Sub. stance of the Son, and Spirit. This to me founds the fame, as if he had faid, that the Scripture has left us entirely at a loss to know, whether the Son and Spirit are the supreme God, the same supreme God with the Father, and of the same Nature, or Essence with him; or whether they are only dependent Creatures, and of a distinct Nature, Substance, or Essence. Here l think, he discovers himself plainly to be in the Arian Scheme. Is there a Syllable, fays he, meaning, in the Scriptures, of their being united in one common Nature, Substance, or Essence? Will this Man have the impudence after this to disclaim all regard to Arius? and fay, he holds none of his peculiar Tenets, as he does Page 6th. Let me affift this Gentleman's fecond and calmer Thoughts on this head, and ask him, if, when all the divine Perfections and Excellencies of fupreme Deity are ascribed to these Persons, the Son and Holy Ghost, it is not from thence clean, as Noonday, that each of them is possessed of the divine Nature and Essence, which is but one? Can he ever imagine, that these Perfections can subsist without their SUBSTRATUM, the divine Nature, Effence, and Substance? I would also ask him another Question; where does he find it faid in the Scripture, that it is effential for the first Person to be unbegotten? If by this he means, that the Term unbegotten is a Property of the Essence, or Substance of the Father, there he falls ina Blune ples of

chool-Bo

persona

the e ree Per ar to ea

Page 4

e ascrib

ire, not Medium

he Princ

xpress \

e ascrib

nere Cr

ah is ev ot yet Distinct

he Rem

vhether

Christ,

nd his leny it,

eriority

Father:

ribed t ween h

narker,

be give

not the

rive to

mons;

culty,

it. Le

and fur

natura,

ture; a

which

icious c

deed at

t re-

ch in

) fee

ather

inde-

terial

as o-

hould

for

word

said a

Sub.

ds the

eft us Spirit

th the

him;

nd of

lere I

Arian

ig, in nmon

have

to A-

enets,

man's ies of

e Son

Noone Na-

ima-

.their

Sub-

where

ential

is he

of the

lls ina Blunder, that all, who have learned the first Prinples of Christianity, can easily discern; for any chool-Boy can tell him, that the Term unbegotten is personal Property, not an essential Persection; for I the essential Persections are common to all the tree Persons; but the personal Properties are pecuar to each.

Page 48th he tells us, that the Name Jehovah may e ascribed to Christ, tho' he neither is a mere Creaare, nor the supreme God. First supposing, there is a sedium betwixt these two, which is contrary to all he Principles of Sense and Reason. For he has these xpress Words; the Name, says he, Jehovah, may e ascribed to him, tho' it were never ascribed to a here Creature. Again, fays he, if the Name Jehoah is ever ascribed to him, which, he says, they have ot yet feen clearly proved; yet it is with an evident Distinction 'twixt him and the supreme God. Here he Remarker is strangely puzzled. He knows not, whether to own, that the Name Jehovah is ascribed to Christ, or not; but he is resolved, if he does own it, nd his Conscience seems to tell him, that he cannot eny it, that he will, right or wrong, affert the Inenority of the Son, as to his divine Nature to the Father: fays he, if ever the Name of Jehovah is afribed to the Son, it is with an evident Distinction beween him and the supreme God. But, pray, Mr. Renarker, how can this be, that the Name Jehovah can be given to any, who is not the supreme God? Has not the supreme God said, that his Glory he will not rive to another. I have told you so much in my Sermons; but you have either wanted too much the Faculty, or Conscience of a Remarker, to take notice of It. Let me even for once go into your Absurdity, and suppose with you, that there is a Person in rerum natura, that is neither the supreme God, nor a Creature; and at the same time, let me suppose, that which I have clearly proved, and which you feem conscious of the Truth of, that the Name Jehovah is indeed ascribed to Christ; how will you account for the Name is alone Jehovah? It can never be a Truth unless Christ be that supreme God, seeing that Name is given to Jesus Christ. Let me grant to you, that Christ was indeed the Representative of the invisible God the Father; yet if he is a distinct Person from him, as you own; and not the same God with him, the Glory of the supreme God is given to another and the supreme God's Name is not alone Jehovah; but others, who are not the supreme God, according to you, both share with him in his Name and in his Glory.

Against my Proof, that Christ is the supreme God, because he is called Jehovah, Isa. 40. 3. you object that it cannot agree to Christ, as the supreme God, be cause, Chap. 3. 1. he is called the Messenger of the Covenant. Here I would remind you again, (for there is no inculcating this Remark upon you) that Christi being the Messenger of the Covenant, and sustaining that inferior Character is no way inconfiftent with his being also the supreme God; considered in another respect, (viz.) in respect of his original Character; see ing he is called Jehovah, which could not be his Name, if in some respect he was not the supreme God, (viz.) with respect to his divine Nature: unless you could prove, that it is inconfistent with fupreme Deity, in order to accomplish the Ends of Redemption, to condescend voluntarily below that Dignity, which a Person, posses'd of supreme Divinity, may justly claim: To suppose which, derogates from that infinite Love of Christ, the second Person of the Godhead, and renders the Salvation of Sinners impracticable; a Thought unworthy of a Christian. Nor dos the Father's fending his Messenger before Christ, in the least hinder him to be Jehovah equally, as the Father is; as is farther objected by the Remarker, Page 50. Jul om 191

Proof of the supreme Deity of Christ, from his being called Jehovah, 1/a: 45. 21, &c. because, Chap. 42.

Rederat he paragraphic Righteon is being lexts spenis Aut e had mat had mat Namas I have ared to cony Sermangument

iven to his or ecause hat volumer, say oes his onstitute
he supre ess? Su

he Gent

hat I she hat I she which the of his A dds in the control of the c preme d her; w upreme the Fatt the Fath cellencie Persons, is paid log

he

(47)

e Redeemer is faid to be Jehovah's Servant; and at he put bis Spirit in bim; that he was called by bim Righteousness, &c. All which is consistent enough with is being Jehovah in the highest Sense, tho' these exts speak of him as Mediator; which Distinction his Author constantly overlooks. And 'tis a pity, ehad mentioned the 8th Verse of that Chapter, I am ebouah, and that is my Name, and my Glory I will not ve to another; for that quite overthrows him, fince at Name, in the forecited Text, is applied to Christ; I have proved by Arguments, that he has not ofred to contradict, Page 181, 182, 183, and 184, of y Sermons. It is true, he fays against one of my rguments, that Christ was given to be a Light of he Gentiles; which again is to be understood of him Mediator. But if he, who thus submitted to be iven to be a Light of the Gentiles voluntarily, was his original Nature Jehovah, as the Text affirms. ecause it calls him so, he must, notwithstanding of hat voluntary Submission, be the supreme God. Morever, fays he, Christ is made our Righteousness. But oes his being made our Righteousness, as he is the onstituted Mediator by the Father, hinder him to be he supreme God, since he is Jehovah our Righteoufes? Surely not, Again, he tells us, he is amazed, hat I should bring that Text, Philip. 2. 10. as a Proof, hat Haiab speaks of Christ in the forecited Text, which the Apostle applies to Christ; and the Ground f his Amazement, he tells us, is this, that the Apostle dds in the next Verse, that every Tongue shall confess brist to the Glory of God the Father. As if Christ canot be the supreme God, because the Father is glorited, when Men confess the Son, and pay the same supreme divine Worship to him, as they do to the Faher; which is fo far from being against his being the upreme God, that it is the greatest Proof of it; for he Father and the Son possessing the same divine Extellencies, and being one in them, tho' they be distinct Persons, when any Piece of supreme divine Worship is paid to any one of them, these Excellencies and Perfections

ruth, Tame that ifible

boc

from him, ther; ovah;

rding in his God,

bjea,

of the there hrift's aining

th his ner re-; seebe his preme unless preme dempgnity, may

m that Godpracti-

or does ist, in

as the de my being ap. 42.

the

(48)

fections are glorified, which are common to each. But he thinks, that supreme divine Worship, which is paid to Christ, is paid to him by the Command and An thority of the Father; and that this detracts from the supreme Deity of the Son: which is so far from being an Argument against his supreme Deity, that it is great Proof of it; for it would be altogether inconfile ent with the Honour and Perfections of the Father, to command him to be worshipped as Jehovah, and un. der that Name, unless he had Perfections and supreme divine Excellencies to answer that Character; and bea Foundation for that Honour, which is confequent on his being owned as Jehovah, and many Knees bowing to him as fuch. Can it ever be supposed, that the Father would interpose his Authority in such an Affair; or look upon himself glorified, upon supreme divine Worship's being paid to the Son, and his being owned as Jehovah, if he was not truly possessed of the same fupreme divine Excellencies and Perfections, as the Father is, and if he was not one with him in Nature and Effence?

In the end of Page 52, he fays, is he the supreme God, who is constituted, or appointed Judge by another? Answer, his being constituted Judge, as Mediator, does not hinder his being the supreme God, as to his divine Nature, nor detract from that original Right, which he has, in conjunction with the Father and Holy Ghoft, of being the Judge of all the Earth, as being the one God together with them. In the next Page he owns, that the Name Jehovah is applied to Christ, Isa. 8. 13. and that the Expressions in the next Verse are expresly applied to Christ, 1 Pet. 2. 16. But he endeavours to take off the Force of the Proof from them, for the supreme Deity of Christ; because the Apostle says, it is contained in the Scripture, Behold, ! lay in Zion a Corner-Stone. Hence he infers, that, feeing Christ was appointed and fixed for an Office by the Father, therefore he cannot be the supreme God himself. But here he falls into his common Blunder; because his Ordination to the Office of Mediator does ot hind hich h e supre e Rema ent lies ere. It orner-fi leity m e was a ather, ry Qu xecutio Person nd fupr m here his plac ted I I ehovah, o the R ore, fee ecessity acter; arily tal ering hi tion. S Christ a rove the nere Sal vould h s fuch ublist af other in lovah th be Jehon

on with

o demo

affert, t

of them

1. But

is paid

d Au.

m the

being

it isa

onfift.

er, to

id un-

preme

id bea

ent on owing

he Fa-

Hair;

divine

owned

fame

he Fa-

re and

preme

ano-

Iedia-

as to

iginal

Earth,

e next

ed to e next. But

from

se the old, I

that,

God

nder; does

not

ot hinder him, who was thus ordained to an Office. hich he voluntarily undertook, to be Jehovah and e supreme God, as to his original Character. And e Remarker mistakes where the Force of my Arguent lies for the Proof of the supreme Deity of Christ ere. It lies not in this, that Christ was laid to be a orner-stone in Zion, tho' his Divinity and supreme beity might be gathered even from that; for feeing e was appointed to the Office of Mediator by the ather, he must of consequence have all those necesry Qualifications, that are needful in order to the xecution of fo great a Trust; and therefore must be Person of infinite Dignity, and truly the most high nd supreme God in our Nature. But that which I m here proving the supreme Deity of Christ from in his place is, because he is called Jehovah. And I ted 1 Pet. 2. 6. only to shew, that the Person, called chovah, Isa. 8. 13. is the Lord Jesus Christ; which, othe Remarker's Conviction it proves; and therebre, seeing he bears the name Jehovah, he must of ecessity be the supreme God, as to his highest Chaacter; whatever inferiour Character he might volunarily take upon himfelf in love to Mankind, in fufering himself to be the Corner-stone to be laid in lion. Says the Remarker, if it could be shewn, that Christ and the Spirit were the Jehovah, this would rove them one Person with the Father, and establish nere Sabellianism. But this is gratis dictum: and I rould have Mr. Remarker to confider, that if there s such a thing as a Possibility, that the Deity can ublist after one manner in Jehovah the Father, in another in Jehovah the Son, and in a third way in Jeloval the Holy Ghost; then each of the Three may be Jehovah, without any of them being the same Peron with the other. And till this Gentleman be able o demonstrate the Impossibility of this, I would have him cautious of imputing Sabellianism to those who affert, that the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost are each of them Jehovah.

H

Upon

(50)

Upon the Proof of the supreme Deity of Christ, 1 had faid, that he is called God expressly by the A. postle John; and that too with such Circumstances. as plainly prove, that the word God is there taken in its highest Sense, denoting the supreme God; because it is farther said, That all things were made by him. The Remarker tells us, that the Expression of auts fig. nifies the quite contrary; and it denotes, that the Person, Sis, by whom all things were made, is only the subordinate ministerial, or instrumental Cause; and he fays most impudently, that all, who understand Greek, must know this. In answer to this, I refer him to Rom. 11. 36, where this very Expression of auts is used of the Father. I hope this Remarker will not fay, that he was only a subordinate ministe rial and instrumental Cause in the Work of Creation I hope the Apostle Paul was not guilty of a downright Solecism, when he says of the supreme God, w whom are all things, as the final Cause; because all things were of auts as the efficient Cause in that fore cited Text, ότι έξ, αυθέ και δι αυτέ, και είς αυτου τα τουτα, &c. if the Expression δι αυτέ, when applied to the Son, imports his being the instrumental Cause only of all things, by the native Force of the Words, according to the Idiom of the Greek Language, I do not fee, but they must have that same Force, when they are applied to, and spoken of the Father: But as they cannot have that Force, or Signification, when applied to him; fo it is abfurd to fay, that they import any fuch thing by their native Force, when they are applied to, or spoken of the Son. And as to that Expression, that the Father created all things dia 78 Xour. 78, there is no fuch Expression in all the word of God, where the Creation of things out of nothing are spoken of, as I have proved at large from page 291, to page 297 of my Sermons, to which I refer; and which this Author ought not to have overlooked; and I believe would not, if he had any thing to reply. What he fays concerning the Articles being prefixed to beou, God the Father, with whom God the ked Art er's Goo red to th es detra ly, and e Artic is Wor ot fay, ext den ning o is very nd calle vs he, inal fro arker, ved fro ather illy she ood by manne egotten erty, b nd Hol her, no eing de ure and mports

n was on. A hat the God with here is Persons, ginning of the se Page Christ, Sense, ken of Effence

rift, 1

the A.

tances,

ken in pecaule

by bim.

UTE fig.

iat the

is only

Cause;

under.

this, I

reffion

marker

niniste

eation,

down-

od, to

ule all

t fore-

व्य क्या

to the only of

accor-

do not en they

as they

nen ap-

import

ney are

nat Ex-

& Xpic-

f God,

re spo-

91, 00

; and

oked;

to re-

being od the

Son

on was; and that therefore the Force of that prered Article denotes the Absoluteness of his, the Faer's Godhead; whereas the Article's not being prered to the Name, denoting the Son, as he infinuates es detract from his supreme Deity, I say, this is so ly, and has so little force of Argument in it, that e Article is prefixed to beos, the Devil and God of is World, 2 Cor. 4.4. I hope the Remarker will ot fay, that the Force of the prefixed Article in that ext denotes his absolute Godhead; and yet his Reaning obliges him to fay fo. Moreover, fays he, is very loyos, thus called God in the first Verse, we nd called the only begotten of the Father; which ys he, is a Description of him, as having his Oriinal from him. But how is this proved, Mr. Rearker, that the Son either has his Original, or is deved from the Father? His being begotten of the ather imports no fuch thing, as I have elfewhere illy shewn; it carries no more in it, that is underood by Mortals, than that the Son subsists after such manner, which is fittest to be described by his being egotten of the Father; which is his personal Proerty, by which he is distinguished from the Father nd Holy Ghost: but his being begotten of the Faher, no more implies his having his Original, or his eing derived from the Father, as to his divine Naure and Essence, than the Father's begetting the Son mports his deriving his Being and Essence from the on. And whereas he infinuates, that it is abfurd, hat the Son should be the same individual supreme God with him, with whom he was in the Beginning; here is no Absurdity in it at all, to say of distinct Persons, that the one was with the other in the Beginning, tho' both these Persons are equally possessed of the felf-same individual supreme divine Nature and Effence.

Page 57th, I had proved the supreme Deity of Christ, as being called God in a strict and a proper Sense, from Psalm 45. 6. which, I proved, was spoken of God the Son, from Heb. 1. 8, 11, 17. He objects, that the Father is said to be a God unto him. This I have answered at full Length, Page 201 of my Sermons; where I shew, that as to his human Nature, the Father is a God unto him. What he has said, Page 58th, that my Scheme destroys the Unity of God, has been but a little before answered, which I shall not again repeat.

H 2

I had proved also the proper and supreme Deity of Christ, from Colos. 2. 9, 10. against which he objects, that we shall find, that the word beorns never signifies the divine Essence, or Substance; and when soever that is spoken of, To below is the Term. This is what were. fuse, and call for a Proof of; for the word θεότης more emphatically denotes the Nature, Essence, and Substance of the Deity, than either to be so, tho' that allo may denote it, tho' not fo emphatically, or being, if the Apostle had used that word, as the smallest Taste of the Greek Language will convince. But, says he, if all the Fulness of the Godhead in this Sense, that is, all the divine Essence, Nature and Substance dwell in Christ, what is reserved for the God and Father of Christ? Answer, The God and Father of Christ, who is called his God with respect to his human Nature, and his Father with respect to both his human and divine Natures, in their feveral different respects, I say, this first Person of the Trinity, notwithstanding that all the Fulness of the Godhead dwells in Christ, has yet for all that all that same Fulness referved for him, and which dwells in him; not in the fame manner indeed, that the Fulness of the Deity dwells in his Son; but in fuch a manner, as that heis equally possessed of all that same individual Fulness, which dwells in his Son bodily fince his Incarnation.

But, says he, it is plain, St. Paul speaketh of a Fulness, which Christians might be filled with, as well as Christ. Answer, Nothing is more plain than the contrary; What? Christians filled with all the Fulness of the Godhead? Heaven-daring Blasphemy to say so! And to this he would give countenance from the Original, xai is in auto membrushes; which, he says, should hould I im, wh s just, v know. he Goo and this 3. 9. th which I and, as But as fo they God is of fuch scil. of God th plied b as the God m ther, p the Ho of this ports t Substa pressio true th from t and w dowm his me anothe all thi of the poffer the F that E ling in 18 to 1 Chris of th

vine

hould have been rendered; and ye have been filled by im, which is absolutely false; the present Translation s just, which all, that are acquainted with the Original, know. Says he, filled with what? with the Fulness of he Godhead? He answers, as denoting heavenly Gifts; and this, he fays, is agreeable to what is faid, Erbef. 3. 9. that ye might be filled with all the Fulness of God; which Expression, he says, is nearly alike in Form, and, as he believes, exactly so in Sense with this. But as the Expressions are different widely in Form. to they differ as widely in Sense: for the Fulness of God is an Expression of such a Form, as it can admit of fuch a Signification as this, (viz.) that Fulness. feil. of Grace, which was predestinated to Believers by God the Father, purchased by God the Son, and applied by God the Holy Ghost, in the same manner, as the Signification of that Expression, the Grace of God may be that Grace, predestinated by God the Father, purchased by God the Son, and applied by God the Holy Ghost. But it is not so with an Expression of this Form, the FULNESS OF THE DEITY; that imports the Fulness of the divine Nature, Essence, and Substance; and, according to the Form of the Expression, is capable of no other Signification. true there is a mediatorial Fulness in Christ, distinct from that Fulness of the Deity, dwelling in him; and which it supposeth: for all those Gifts and Endowments, bestowed on his human Nature, belong to his mediatorial Fulness; but as to these he depends on another for them, it pleased the Father, that in him all this Fulness should dwell; but as to that Fulness of the Deity, that dwells in him, as he is God, he is possessed of it in the same independent manner, that the Father is. And that the Apostle is speaking of that Fulness of the divine Nature and Essence's dwelling in Christ, is plain from the Apostle's Scope, which 18 to exhort these Colossians to adhere stedfastly to their Christian Profession; and particularly to the Profession of that fundamental Doctrine of the Trinity of the divine Persons in the one divine Essence, v. 2. called the Mystery

him,
of my ature,
faid,

ity of lich I

pjects, gnifies r that we re-more Subat also

Péiotik, nallest t, says

Sense, stance d Fa-

Christ, n Nanuman

pects, standells in referin the

Deity t he is

ion. a Fulwell

n the

y fo! Ori-

fays,

Mystery of God, (viz.) God the Holy Ghost, and the Father, and of Christ; in whom, he tells us, are bid all the Treasures of Wisdom, &c. And again, v. 6, he again exhorts them fledfastly to adhere to the Profession of Christ, and as they had received him, so to walk in bim; and particularly he warns them to beware of a pretended Philosophy; which would be ready to be. get in them dishonourable Thoughts of Christ, as if he was not the same one supreme God with the Father and Holy Ghost. And he intimates to them, that this vain Deceit, which past with them for Philosophy, stood directly in opposition to this Mystery of God, and of the Father, and of Christ; but he tells them not to regard that vain Deceit, or fuffer themselves to be spoiled of the Profession, or Belief of the fundamental Doctrines of Christianity; for whatever Opinion that pretended Philosophy might suggest to them, concerning Christ, as not having a Subsistence in the divine Nature, as well as the Father; and as if this, according to their vain Philosophy, was impossible, and a Contradiction; yet the Apostle, by divine Inspiration, tells them, v. 9. that in Christ dwells all the Fulness of the Godhead. The impartial Part of Mankind must judge, whether this is not agreeable to the Defign and Argument of the Apostle. And indeed, unless all the Fulness of the Godhead dwelt in Christ in this Sense, he could not be God at all in a proper Senfe.

I had faid, that by the Form of God is to be underflood the Nature and Essence of God. He tells us, that this cannot be; because St. Paul determines the Sense of the word Form, in the next Verse, not to be the Essence, or Nature; but the Appearance, or Resemblance: I say, he determines the Sense quite otherwise; for Christ took not on him the Appearance, or Resemblance of a Servant: for by becoming Man, he took on him the Nature and Essence of a Servant; he was really Man upon his Incarnation, whose Nature and Essence was a Servant. Again he objects, that by the Form of God cannot be meant the Nature and Essence nce of C ot be en he Essen he divin aking up flory of o person arily fut ras inter e was b God wit ibmit to vithout ays he, Perfectio here be f Robb reat occ he fupr Servant, was abfo Robber ther, as ections hefe wo now wid what I h Sermon tion, th of God the Sor Equalit could h that. co fame fu

ience,

this A

ny not

tolerab

preme

(55)

nce of God; because that is immutable, and he could ot be emptied of it. True, he was not emptied of he Essence, or Nature of God, so as to cease to have he divine Nature; yet, by his becoming Man, and aking upon him the Form of a Servant, he vailed the flory of his Divinity by his Flesh, which he took inpersonal Union with his divine Nature; and volunarily subjected himself, and submitted to a State, that as interior to that, which he might justly claim, as e was by Nature the supreme God, the same supreme sod with the Father; and not any more obliged to ubmit to the Form of a Servant, than the Father was, vithout his own voluntary Condescension. Again, ays he, if Christ was equal with God in all divine Perfections, originally equal, what occasion could here be for Paul (a rational and exact Writer) to talk of Robbery in the Case? Answer, there was this very reat occasion, to shew the amazing Condescension of he supreme God, to take upon him the Form of a ervant, tho' his original Dignity was fuch, that he was absolutely equal with God, and was not guilty of Robbery, when he claimed an Equality with the Faher, as being posses'd of the same Nature and Perections with him. As to the Paraphrase he gives of hese words, it will appear to any impartial Person, how wide of the Sense of the Text it is, that considers, what I have faid from Page 225, to Page 230 of my Sermons; where I prove, as I think, to a Demonstration, that, whatever Sense Christ's existing in the Form of God imports, it must carry a Sense, that vindicates the Son from the Guilt of Robbery, in claiming an Equality with the Father. Now, if the Remarker could have found out any Sense to affix to these words, that could have gained this end, short of his being the same supreme God with the Father in Nature and Est sence, neither he nor his Friends would have pass'd by this Argument, as they have done, without taking any notice of it. Says he, would it be an Expression tolerable, or proper to fay, that he who is the fu-Preme God in Nature and Essence, &c. appeared in and of

Pro. fo to leware

to be: ne was r and ophy, God, them

t this

felves unda-

Opithem, n the

f this, Mible, ne Inell the Man-

deed,

roper

nderls us, es the

to be Re-

there, or n, he; he ature at by

d Elsence his own Shape or Likeness? But this is a false Charge laid against the Apostle; he says no such thing that he appeared: the word is υπάρχων, he existed in the Form of God; and it might very well be said by the Apostle concerning Christ, the supreme and most high God, that he existed in the Form of God.

As to that Phrase εκ άρπαγμου ηγήσατο, it cannot sign nify, he did not covet, or greedily catch at, (viz.) an Equality with God. This was no Instance of Humility and Condescension in one, who was only a Representative of the supreme God; as they suppose, his being in the Form of God only fignifies. If this was the Meaning, the Apostle brings in these words very flatly, having a defign to fet forth the amazing Conde. scension of Christ in humbling himself, to tell Mankind, in order to perfuade them of this stooping Condescension of his, that he did not covet an Equality with God; for that is no Proof of his Humility: but on the contrary, it would have been an Argument of most intolerable Pride, if he had affected an Equality with him, whose Representative he was, if he had been no more, than a bare Representative. But the words, taken in the Sense of our present Translation, makes the Apostle speak good Sense, and to the purpose, that he has at present in hand, (viz.) to set forth the amazing Condescension and stooping Grace, that Christ, who, as to his original State, is the great God, and of the same Nature and Essence with the Father; and did him no Injustice, or Dishonour, when he afferted and claimed Equality with him, that he should become his Servant; and not infift upon the infinitely high Claim, he was justly entitled to. This is a Proof indeed to the Apostle's purpose of his condescending Grace: 10 that the word άρπαγμου here cannot possibly signify Præda, as άςπαγμα may possibly do in Heliodorus; the Sense of the Place will not bear it; because for the Apostle to fay, that he who is in the Form of God, while by that Phrase he means only an Ambassador, or Representative of God, who is but a Servant, humbles himself wonderfully, by taking on himself the Form orm of a very fla dered in ot to spe Ho is in them, Ambai n upon on in fu ervant, e Apol ty, that umbles nality w ght No that So re it ca Upon

> As to nd Lyons, ser paopul tis plain ellency of nd what and they Person, we ain to a Christ him Robbery top at the > ie, which lature a

30 to 2

he Fath

ble Pov

orth the zurop has farther; their pur derstood, tion tak

Dignity of

harge

hat he Form

postle

God,

ot fig.

z.) an

umili. Repre-

se, his

is was

s very

onde-

Man-

Con-

uality

: but

ent of uality

been

vords.

makes amachrift,

, and

; and

Terted

come

laim,

ed to

: fo

gnify

; the

he A-

God,

ador,

hum-

f the

Form

orm of a Servant, I fay, for the Apostle to fay this, very flat and weak, and far below him, even condered in his natural Character, as a Man of Sense ot to speak of him as an Apostle: for to be sure, he, to is in the Form of God, that is to fay, according them, who bears the Character of a Representative Ambaffador, has the Form of a Servant already, tan upon him: and therefore it can be no Condescenon in fuch a Person to take on him the Form of a ervant, feeing he is in that Form already. But for e Apostle to say, that this is an Instance of Humiy, that an Ambassador, or Representative of God, imbles himself by not affecting, or coveting an Enality with him, whose Representative he is, is downght Non-fenfe. And yet all this is the Consequence that Senfe, the Arians put on this Text, and therere it cannot be the true Sense of it *.

Upon that Text, John 10. 30. I and my Father are 12, which, I fay, must be understood of a Unity of lature and Essence; and which I prove from Page 30 to 236 of my Sermons; he remarks, that seeing he Father hath communicated a supreme incontrouble Power to the Son, therefore none can pluck the Saints

As to that Passage in the Letter from the Churches of Vienne nd Lyons, οι κ' εστί τοσαυτου Ζηλοταί κ' μιμηταί χρις ε εγευουτο, ι έν μορφή Θεν δικάρχων ούκ άρπαγμον ήγησατο το είναι ίσα θεώ. tis plain from these words, that the Authors are shewing the Exellency of Christians; what some did, and others might arrive at, nd what all ought to strive after, (viz.) an Imitation of Christ: erion, whom Christians set for their Pattern, and in some respect atain to a conformity to him, feeing he is no less a Person, than Christ himself; who being in the Form of Christ, thought it no Robbery to be equal with God; therefore they had good reason to op at these words: because these only served to set forth the infinite Dignity of the Person of Christ, by imitating whom, they would set onth the Excellency of Christians; and seeing these words, exeruses auto had no tendency to do this; therefore they justly proceed no arther; but stop at the end of the 6th Verse, the 7th not being for their purpole. Thus it appears, that the Authors of that Letter understood, su doway mon nynoaro, in the same Sense, as our Translation takes them in.

his own Shape or Likeness? But this is a false Charge laid against the Apostle; he says no such thing that he appeared: the word is υπάρχων, he existed in the Form of God; and it might very well be faid by the Apolle concerning Christ, the supreme and most high God, that he existed in the Form of God.

As to that Phrase εκ άρπαγμον ήγήσατο, it cannot sign nify, he did not covet, or greedily catch at, (viz.) an Equality with God. This was no Instance of Humility and Condescension in one, who was only a Representative of the supreme God; as they suppose, his being in the Form of God only fignifies. If this was the Meaning, the Apostle brings in these words very flatly, having a defign to fet forth the amazing Conde. scension of Christ in humbling himself, to tell Man. kind, in order to perfuade them of this stooping Condescension of his, that he did not covet an Equality with God; for that is no Proof of his Humility: but on the contrary, it would have been an Argument of most intolerable Pride, if he had affected an Equality with him, whose Representative he was, if he had been no more, than a bare Representative. But the words, taken in the Sense of our present Translation, makes the Apostle speak good Sense, and to the purpose, that he has at present in hand, (viz.) to set forth the amazing Condescension and stooping Grace, that Christ, who, as to his original State, is the great God, and of the same Nature and Essence with the Father; and did him no Injustice, or Dishonour, when he afferted and claimed Equality with him, that he should become his Servant; and not infift upon the infinitely high Claim, he was justly entitled to. This is a Proof indeed to the Apostle's purpose of his condescending Grace: 10 that the word άρπαγμου here cannot possibly signify Præda, as άςπαγμα may possibly do in Heliodorus; the Sense of the Place will not bear it; because for the Apostle to fay, that he who is in the Form of God, while by that Phrase he means only an Ambassador, or Representative of God, who is but a Servant, humbles himself wonderfully, by taking on himself the Form orm of a very fla dered in ot to spe 10 is in them, Ambai en upon on in fu ervant, e Apof ty, that umbles uality w ght No f that So ore it ca Upon ne, which Vature a 30 to 2 he Fath

> * As to nd Lyons, S EN MODE t is plain ellency o ind what nd they Perion, w ain to a Christ hir Robbery stop at th Dignity of orth the autou ha farther; their pur > > derstood. tion take

ble Pov

Charge

hat he

Form

postle

God,

ot sig.

z.) an

umili. Repre-

se, his

is was

onde-Man-

Con-

uality

: but

ent of

uality

been

vords,

makes

ama-Chrift,

, and

; and

Terted

come

laim,

ed to

: 10

gnify

; the

he A-

God,

ador,

hum-

f the

Form

orm of a Servant, I fay, for the Apostle to fay this, very flat and weak, and far below him, even condered in his natural Character, as a Man of Sense; ot to speak of him as an Apostle: for to be sure, he, ho is in the Form of God, that is to fay, according them, who bears the Character of a Representative Ambassador, has the Form of a Servant already, taen upon him: and therefore it can be no Condescenon in fuch a Person to take on him the Form of a ervant, feeing he is in that Form already. But for e Apostle to say, that this is an Instance of Humity, that an Ambassador, or Representative of God, imbles himself by not affecting, or coveting an Euality with him, whose Representative he is, is downght Non-sense. And yet all this is the Consequence f that Sense, the Arians put on this Text, and therebre it cannot be the true Sense of it *.

Upon that Text, John 10. 30. I and my Father are no, which, I say, must be understood of a Unity of lature and Essence; and which I prove from Page 30 to 236 of my Sermons; he remarks, that seeing he Father hath communicated a supreme incontroulble Power to the Son, therefore none can pluck the

^{*} As to that Passage in the Letter from the Churches of Vienne nd Lyons, δι κ έπι τοσαυτου Ζηλοταί κ μιμηταί χρις ε έγευουτο, ς εν μορφή Θεκ υπάρχων ουκ άρπαγμον ήγησατο το είναι ίσα θεώ. tis plain from these words, that the Authors are shewing the Exellency of Christians; what some did, and others might arrive at, and what all ought to strive after, (viz.) an Imitation of Christ:
and they inhance this Excellency from the infinite Dignity of the rerion, whom Christians set for their Pattern, and in some respect atain to a conformity to him, feeing he is no less a Person, than Christ himself; who being in the Form of Christ, thought it no Robbery to be equal with God; therefore they had good reason to top at these words: because these only served to set forth the infinite Dignity of the Person of Christ, by imitating whom, they would set orth the Excellency of Christians; and seeing these words, εκένωσεν zuron had no tendency to do this; therefore they justly proceed no farther; but stop at the end of the 6th Verse, the 7th not being for their purpose. Thus it appears, that the Authors of that Letter understood, εκάρπαγμου ηγήσατο, in the same Sense, as our Translation takes them in.

Saints out of his hands. If by the Father's communicating this incontroulable supreme Power to the Son, he means, deriving of it to him; as what the Son hat not of himself, and independently, as he must mean if he talks confistently with himself; I then ask this Gentleman, how he accounts for this supreme Power's being capable of being communicated, that is derived, to one, who is not the supreme God, God by Nature and Essence? This, I believe, will puzzle a little his philosophical Genius. Besides, says he, is not the Father faid to be greater than all, excluding every other Being, every other Person, from being thus great in the same Sense? Answer, The Father is greater than all other Beings; but not greater than those divine Persons, who are the same one supreme Being with himself. Nor is it inconsistent with the Son's Equality with the Father, that as he is Mediator, he has his People committed to him, as a Trust from the Father, Thus I have vindicated those Texts, by which I proved in my Sermons, that those Excellencies and Perfections, which are peculiar to the supreme God, are ascribed to Christ, from the false Glosses, this Author, and those he copies from, puts on them.

He asks, Page 69th, can there be three distinct Perfons, where there is but one numerical individual Understanding and Will? To which I have answered, there may, and that too even in human Persons, for any thing that we know to the contrary. And I have again and again called upon the Arians to prove, that this is impossible in the divine Nature especially: that it cannot subfift in such a various way, as to constitute distinct and various Persons. And the none of them have hitherto attempted the Proof of it, but generally past it over, as if this Controversy was not concerned in it, whereas it is the chief thing in it; and the Determination of this one Point gives the finishing stroke to the whole Affair. And I must say, this Authorhas taken a very cunning Method to rid himself of any Trouble the Proof of it might cost him; for he tells the world, that it is felf-evident, and needs no Proof. And nd thus at be fo vidence other in in these lemarker er have fe, to g ffemble ter the ine Perf Sential 1 ntelliger erson p third, & an; bec nd Effe ou have which is ies after

Again rom Ph bimself, 1 o whon nd who ing him Power, hings? Capacity Earth, Father; But, as by he is vine inc must of Father, in Perso rial Pov essentia to bimfe

nuni-Son,

1 hath

mean,

this

ower's rived,

Vature

le his

other

eat in than

divine

with

as his ather.

I pro-

Per-

d, are uthor,

t Per-

1 Un-

wered,

is, for

I have

, that

: that

Stitute

them

erally

erned

e De-

stroke

orhas

of any

e tells

Proof.

And

nd thus he carries his Point very easily, if Men would it be so complaisant to him, as to take his word for vidence. Says he, Can one intelligent Agent, and nother intelligent Agent, and a third intelligent Agent, n these after all but be one intelligent Agent? Mr. emarker, you misrepresent the Affair; and you eier have not a right Understanding of the Matter; or fe, to give your Herefy the more countenance, you ssemble it. To help you to Ideas here, you must ter the Terms of the Question, and say, Can one diine Person, posses'd of the divine Nature, and all sential Perfections, that belong to it, such as infinite ntelligence, Power of acting, &c. and another divine erson posses'd of the same divine Nature, &c. and third, &c. can all these be one God? I answer, they an; because they are united all in the same Nature, nd Effence, and all effential Perfections. Now here ou have nothing to reply; but to fay, it is Jargon: which is no Evidence of the Sincerity of your Inquiies after Truth.

Against my Proof of the Omnipotency of Christ, rom Philip. 3. 21. that he is able to subdue all things to himself, he says, May not this be very well said of him, o whom all Power is given both in Heaven and Earth, nd who is made Head over all things, without suppoing him to be the supreme God, who gave him this Power, and who thus made him the Head over all hings? Answer, In so far as he is Mediator, and in that Capacity has Power given to him both in Heaven and Earth, and is constituted Head over all things by the father; in this respect he is inferior to the Father: But, as he is possessed of that Almighty Power, whereby he is able to subdue all things to himself, that divine incommunicable Attribute of infinite Power, he must of necessity be the same supreme God with the Father, in Nature and Essence, tho' distinct from him in Person. And tho' he shall deliver up his mediatorial Power, the Power that is given him, yet that essential Power, whereby he is able to subdue all things to bimself, he has it independently of the Father; and can no more be divested of it, than the Father can of his Power. The Remarker here, according to his usual way, passes by all those Arguments, I have advanced, that are unexceptionable; and touches only a these, to which he thinks he has some sham Answer: and therefore I hold all those Arguments, that he passes over, as to his Conviction, unanswerable.

To

can

Against my Proof of the Omniscience of Christ. from John 21. 17. Peter said unto bim, Lord then know'st all things, thou know'st, that I love thee. He tells, that by the same Argument we may prove that all true Christian Believers are the supreme om. niscient God; because St. John says of them, Ye have an Unction from the Holy One, and ye know all things, I John 2. 20. But the Fallacy of this will appear, if we confider, that in the first case, we are directed to interpret the Words of Peter to Christ, thou know. est all things, in a strict and absolute Sense from the Circumstance, in which they are delivered, as standing connected with the Words, that immediately follow, thou know'st that I love thee; which determines, that the preceeding Words, thou knowest all things, are to be taken absolutely; because the Apostle cannot but be understood to speak of a Knowledge of all things in an absolute and strict Sense; when he ascribes at the same time to Christ the Knowledge of the Secrets of his Heart, and of the Truth of his Love to him; which, as I have cleared in my Sermons, is a special Prerogative of the supreme God, Fer. 17. 10. I Kings 8. 39. and all this without pretending, that he received this Knowledge from any other: But the Case is the very reverse in the Instances the Remarker gives; for St. John expressly teaches, that that Knowledge, that Believers have of all things, is fuch a Knowledge, as flows from their holy Unction by the Grace of the Spirit; which plainly determines the Sense to be limited to all those things, that are necessary to their Salvation; and all those things, the Knowledge of which are described in Scripture to flow from that Unction, and of the Knowledge of s to th Voman ccording bings, ti b manife Words o Angel of earcher er, the ite the Words; e a Cor oftle h ven bei o. Now But, fay ot that t is falf God, th hey loo hich it

whom th n the B f all the among N orth fr draw fr he knev ferved, Circumi what K him fro Sermon things he was the fam diator, and cor Kingdo

from th

which er can

to his re ad.

nly at

fwer:

nat he

hrift,

d thou

He prove,

e om-

things,

ppear,

rected

know. m the stand.

ly fol-

mines,

hings,

e can-

dge of hen he dge of

Love

ons, is er. 17.

nding,

other:

ces the

s, that nction

rmines

at are

hings,

ge of

which

hich it inspires according to the Gospel-Promise. s to that other Text, 2 Sam. 14. 20. where the Voman of Tekeah, says of David, My Lord is wife, ccording to the Wisdom of an Angel of God, to know all bings, that are in the Earth: These last Words are manifeltly determined to a limited Sense by the very Words of the Text, (according to the Wisdom of an Angel of God, not according to the Wisdom of the earcher of Hearts, as in the other case) that I woner, the Remarker was not ashamed so much as to ite the Passage, tho' he has taken care to conceal the Words; because the very repeating of them would e a Confutation of his Argument. Says he, the Aoffle had used this Expression concerning Christ, ven before his Death and Resurrection, John 16. o. Now we are sure, thou knowest all things, &c. But, fays he, what do they conclude from all this? of that he was the supreme omniscient God. Answer, t is false; they then did take him to be the supreme God, the fame supreme God with the Father; for hey looked upon him to be that fame divine Person, whom this Evangelist, in the first Chapter, tells us, was n the Beginning with God, and was God, and Creator fall things, and who was made Flesh, and tabernacled among Men; which is the fame thing with his coming orth from God; which is the Conclusion they draw from his giving them sufficient Evidence, that he knew all things. Moreover here it must be oberved, that there is no Intimation in the least, nor no Circumstance from which it can be gathered, that, what Knowledge our Saviour had, was derived to him from another; but, as I have fully shew'd in my Sermons from Page 252, to Page 261, he knew all things independently, as the Father does, and that he was the Searcher of the Heart, and the Reins in the same Sense, as the Father is. It is true, as Mediator, that Knowledge of things, which he hath, and communicates to his Servants, in promoting his Kingdom here in the World, is faid to be received from the Father; and it is a Part of the Gifts of the Spirit, which he received without measure: but that is not inconfistent with his knowing independently himself all things, as he is God. This Distinction should be always observed. I would also remark, that this Author, Page 72d, by a Trick, common to those of his Party, says, that I cite Fer. 17. 10. 1 Kings 8. 39. as a Proof of the supreme Deity of Christ; whereas I cite these Texts only to prove that the Searcher of the Heart is the supreme God; and the supreme Deity of Christ I prove from his hav. ing this Perfection ascribed to him in other Places of Scripture; which I cite particularly. But he fays, if those Texts be applied to Christ, they prove too much; for they will prove Christ to be the Person of the Father. I own indeed, that by proving, that that Perfection of fearthing Hearts (which is an incommunicable Property of Supreme Deity) belongs to Chrift, we prove too much against the Arians; that is to fay, we prove a great deal more than they would have us to do. But we do not thereby, as the Remarker says, prove, that the Son is the same Person with the Father. We prove no more than this, that therefore he must be the same supreme God with the Father; which is confistent enough, as has been shewed, with his being a distinct Person from him.

I had faid for proof of the Omniscience of Christ, and that he had that divine Perfection of knowing all things independently of any other, and that what he knew, was not by any Revelation made to him, as he was God, by any other, as the Prophets, and other inspired Men knew things, that were beyond the ordinary Reach of Men; and for this purpose I cited John 2. 25. That he knew all Men, and needed not, that any should testify of Man; for he knew what was This he fays is spoken of the Man Christ Jesus. But, I say, it is not spoken of Christ Jesus as a mere Man; it is spoken of the God-Man Christ Jelus. And I challenge all the Arians to give an Instance, where this is spoken of any mere Man, or of any Angel, or of any, who is not the supreme God. He

fays,

ys, is no

nd dem

is faid ree, to a ot posse:

late On

mniscie od the

eing, or

unicate n has n

unicate

dge in a elus, is

Deity.

From

n indepe

e may age 73

Christ fr

efus Chi

Mediato: her, to

Churches

hat pur

ute Om f the S y a per

f the I

hat Un

Person,

belongs

he hum

his Peri

divine 1

ays he,

pared v

knoweth neither

the Ren

(63)

ys, is not Elista a plain Instance; I say, he is not, and demand of the Remarker, where any thing like is said of him. It is Blasphemy in the highest detee, to affert any such thing of any Person, that is of possessed the supreme divine Persection of ablate Omniscience, Omniscience in the strictest Sense, maiscience in the same Sense, as it is applied to od the Father. Knowing the Thoughts then in any eing, or Person, where that Knowledge is not communicated by another, or where the Being, or Person has no need, that that Knowledge should be communicated, and when the Person has such a Knowledge in and of himself, as is the Case with omniscient esus, is a plain and irrefragable Proof of supreme

Deity.

t that

dently

action

mark,

nmon

7. 10,

ity of

prove,

God;

s hav.

ices of

ys, if much;

ne Fa-

muni-

Christ,

is to

would

ie Re-

Person, that

th the

been

im. Christ,

ng all

hat he

m, as

and o-

nd the

cited

d not,

et was

Christ

is as a

Jesus.

tance, v An-

He fays,

From what has been faid, upon Christ's possessing h independent and underived Knowledge of all things, e may easily gather an Answer, to what he says, age 73d, against the Proof of the Omniscience of hrist from Revel. 2.23. Nor is it inconsistent, with elus Christ's knowing all things, as God, that he, as Mediator, receives a Revelation from God the Faher, to give to his Servants for the Instruction of his hurches; and accepts of a Commission from him for hat purpose; far less is it inconsistent with the absoute Omniscience of the divine Nature of the Person f the Son, that his human Nature, even tho' united y a personal Union to the divine, should be ignorant f the Day of Judgment: and it is in consequence of hat Union, whereby these two Natures become one Person, that Ignorance of the Day of Judgment, which elongs only to the Principle of finite Intelligence in he human Nature of Christ, comes to be ascribed to his Person; notwithstanding, that with respect to his livine Nature, he knew the Day of Judgment. But lays he, according to that Text, Mark 13. 32. compared with Matt. 24. 36. But of that Day and Hour knoweth no Man, no not the Angels, that are in Heaven, neither the Son, but the Father. It is observable, says the Remarker, that the Father only in his own Person is he, that knoweth the Day of Judgment. Now where does the Remarker learn this? How can be prove it? Says he, it being expressly said, that no Per fon knew it, but the Father only. This is also ablo. lutely false; for this is said no where expressly in the Word of God. It is faid expressly, that no Man knoweth it; for solis fignifies fo, otherwise there would be a Tautology, if the Signification of socis were no Person; for if no Person knew that Day, the Angels, being Persons, needed not be excepted, being already excluded by the Term no Person: The Substantive therefore, that agrees to socie is andportes; so that all that are excluded from knowing this Day, are mere Men, the Angels, and the Person of the Son, as fat as he is Man, or confidered with respect to his human Nature; and in regard of that Principle of finite Intelligence, which belongs to his Person. But neither the Son, as God, nor the Holy Ghoft, who are both possessed of the same Principle of infinite Intelligence, that is in the Father, are excluded: and therefore, which is very observable, the Evangelist Matthew excludes only Men, and Angels, from knowing this Day; and makes no mention of the Son as excluded; which plainly shews, that by these Words, my Father only, he meant only to exclude created Persons: for though there was a Respect, in which the Son might be excluded, from knowing that Day, (viz.) as far, as his Person had any thing created, belonging to it, and accordingly is by the Evangelist Mark fo far excluded; yet as there was another Respect, in which he could not be excluded, from knowing that Day (viz.) as he was God; therefore the Evangelist Matthew does not mention the Son as at all excluded; but only Men and Angels. But fays the Remarker, there is a Gradation, first it is said no Man, &c. then he excepts Angels, as superiour Beings; then the Son himself, as above them. But in my way, the Gradation and Force of the Text is loft. I answer by no means; for tho' we understand our Saviour, speaking of himfelf only with respect to his human Nature; yet the Gradation Fradatio uman I or tho' felf, is eing a 1 o fupre ingels: ven tho' is huma More is faid o not th e obser Deity, fi ity, as egotten ion; bu Author f the T father; Christ, ed as he eve re faid s they our Lo Nature of his h Persons Creature Father; of my Christ, to his their G Persons Christ,

God an

et the ture, d

Now

an he

o Per.

ablo.

in the

Man

Would

ere no

ngels

Iready

antive

hat all

mere

as far

uman

ite In-either

e both gence,

efore,

ew ex-Day;

which

r only,

hough be ex-

as his

t, and

excluich he

(viz.)

w does y Men

a Gra-

xcepts mfelf,

on and

eans; f him-

et the

dation

radation is not thereby lost, when he mentions his uman Nature after Angels, as being above them; or tho' our Saviour's human Nature, confidered by felf, is doubtless inferiour to the Nature of Angels, eing a real human Nature; yet confidered as united fupreme Deity, it is on that account above the ngels: and therefore the Gradation is preserved, ventho' we understand our Saviour, speaking only of is human Nature, seeing it was united to his divine. Moreover, to clear that Text, Matt. 24. 36. where is faid, But of that Day and Hour knoweth no Man, o not the Angels of Heaven, but my Father only; let it e observed, that the Term Father, applied to the beity, fignifies not only the first Person of the Triity, as standing related to God the Son, who was egotten of him by an eternal and ineffable Generaon; but also it is used to signify the Creator and Author of things. In this last Sense, all the Persons f the Trinity stand related to the Creature, as their father; and therefore we see that the Lord Jesus Christ, the only-begotten of the Father, consideed as the Creator of things, is expressly termed he everlasting Father, Isa. 9. 6. and Believers re said to be born of the Spirit, John 3. 5, 6. s they are faid to be begotten of the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ. In this Sense, the divine Nature of Christ is the Father, because the Creator of his human Nature: and in this Sense each of the Persons of the Trinity, as they stand related to the Creature, either in a natural or spiritual Sense, is their Father; as I had occasion to shew Page 417, 418 of my Sermons. And in this Sense, the Lord Jesus Christ, as Man, tells his Disciples, that he ascended to his Father, and their Father, to his God, and their God; that is, to the one God, subsisting in three Persons; who were equally the God and Father of Christ, as to his human Nature, as they were the God and Father of his Disciples. Thus we plainly fee, that the term Father is taken in a Sense in Scripture, denoting the one supreme God, subsisting in three Persons, the Author and Creator of all things; and I humbly conceive it is to be taken in this Senie in the Text before us. So that the Sense comes out to be this: But of that Day and of that Hour know. eth no Man, no not the Angels of Heaven; that is, no Creature knoweth of that Day, or of that Hour; but my Father; that is, the TRIUNE Gop, the fu. preme Being, subfifting in three Persons; each of whom stand related to me, as far as I am a Creature, as my Father, knows that Day and Hour only. neither the Son, as he is God, nor the Holy Ghost are excluded from knowing that Day and Hour; far less the first Person of the Trinity, because all these stand related to the human Nature of Christ, as a Father that is, Creator; by whose common Omnipotence, I mean by the Omnipotence, common to each of these three divine Persons, he was created, as he was Man. But, says the Remarker, how can it be true, what our Saviour fays of himself, that he knew not the Day of Judgment, feeing he knew it as God, he could not fay in truth, that he was ignorant of it? The Answer to this is easy; for, if he was ignorant of the Day of Judgment with respect to any intelligent Principle in his Person, he might with the greatest Truth affirm of himself, that he knew not that Day; and might as well fay of himself, that he knew not that Day, as he could fay of himself, that he was weary: for, as when Weariness is ascribed to the Person of Christ, the Meaning is not, that his divine Nature was affected with that Uneafiness; so when it is faid of him, that he was ignorant of the Day of Judgment, the Meaning is not, that his Divine Nature was liable to that Imperfection, or that the Knowledge of that Day was hid from the Principle of infinite Intelligence, that was in him, as he is God; but the Meaning only is, that the Knowledge of that Day was hid from the Principle of finite Intelligence, which is in him, as he is Man; yet as that finite Principle belongs to his human Nature, united by a personal Union with his divine, that which is pecuery justl On th nd by bin f it is, nd prese left to ut if he e'il fee, are uj On He Power; her's Po father's o long; hings b olds all ourself nent on he princ Occasion But does qually a of the S brefervi s fuch n these Power; and can Deity. you.a h derstand stains al

Word

with fo

Refuge

it from

the Con

in this

ar only

(67)

ar only to it, is affirmed of his whole Person, and ery justly too.

ings; Sense

s out

now-

lour;

ne fu.

ire, as

Thus

oft are ar less

stand

ather

tence,

ch of

e was

true,

w not

d, he

of it?

orant

ntelli-

great-

that knew

ie was

o the

livine

hen it

Day of

Na-

t the

ple of

God;

f that

gence,

finite

by a

peculiar

On that Text, Col. 1. 17. He is before all things, and by him all things confift: He fays, the plain Sense it is, that God created all things by Jesus Christ, and preserves all things by him too. But the Reader left to find out the Plainness of this Sense himself. In the never so superficially look into the Context, e'll see, that all things consist by Christ himself, that, are upheld and preserved by him in their Being.

On Heb. 1.3. Upholding all things by the Word of his Power; he says, this may be understood of the Faher's Power, that Christ upholds all things by the Tather's Power. How now, Mr. Remarker! It is not blong, fince you faid, that the Father upholds all hings by Christ; and here you say, that Christ upolds all things by the Father. Have you not forgot ourself here? Is the Father turned to be an Instrument only in the Son's hand, by whose Power he, as he principal Cause; sustains all things; as on another Occasion, you fay, the Son is in creating all things? But does not your Reason tell you, that both these are qually abfurd; and neither the Father can make ule of the Son, as an Instrument, either in creating or preserving: nor can the Son make use of the Father, s such in these Works. But whoever is concerned In these truly divine Works, must exert that almighty Power, which is incommunicable to any Creature, and cannot subsist in any Subject inferiour to supreme Deity. However, I perceive your Tutor has given you a hint here, that auts makes it necessary to understand it of the Son's own Power, by which he sustains all things; and not of the Father's. And that the Words are not capable of that Sense, unless the Word had been auts without the Aspiration; and with something of a Reluctancy you fly to your old Refuge, that, whatever Power the Son hath; he hath it from the Father. But pray, is there any thing in the Context, that countenances this? Is it faid, either in this Context, or in any other place, that that K 2

Power, by which God the Son upholds all things, is either not his own, or given to him by another? Will the Remarker never get it drove into his head, to be able to distinguish between the Power of Christ, which is essential to his divine Nature in the Text under Consideration, called duamin, and that ignora, which was given of the Father to him, as Mediator; whereby in that Character, he has a Right to dispose of all things in Heaven and Earth, for the Benefit of his

Church, and gathering in of his Elect.

I had proved the Omnipresence of Christ from Matt. 18. 20. Where two or three are gathered together in my Name, there am I in the midst of them. If Christ be in the midst of his People, wherever they are gathered together, I think the Consequence is plain enough, that he is Omnipresent. As to the manner of his possessing Space, when he is in the midst of his People, it is not at all concerned in the Question; but to be fure, the Meaning cannot be, that his human Nature is in the midst of them, whether, as to that, he comes to the World, or leaves the World; yet there is room left for his being present with his People; not by a bare effential Presence, whereby he fills all things together with the Father and Holy Ghost; but also with a gracious Presence, putting forth, and communicating to his People in all places, where they are met in his Name, suitable Grace; and working graciously upon them in the various Places, where they are met. And feeing he operates in all these various Places graciously, he must be there, according to the known Maxim, bic agere, Juppinit bic elle.

He next proceeds to the Eternity of the Son; and here he talks very strangely, and tells us, that the Father alone is without any Original and Cause of his Existence; and yet he seems to infinuate, that for all that the Son may be eternal in a proper Sense, tho he be the Effect of a Cause without himself; which is a flat Contradiction: for wherever there is an Effect produced, that did not exist before, Time commences thereby;

ereby; rnity, à cift, befo ery Supp that Ca ort Succe e inconfi Against ig on tha ith the God, is blequen ho hath easy; th Mediat fuch: confift God, as He fa ame yeste he Person on, lapp > hat Jefus ot his atter Servilare the cify'd is Christ for the Servine preach, in order must pretion, ar not hime the second and no can this the Apo them, Faith, ereby; and in that case, there can be no proper Ernity, à parte ante, but if the thing be supposed to rist, before it was produced by any Cause, by that ery Supposition it is proved not to be an Effect: that Causes and Effects in their very Nature imort Succession; and consequently imply time, and re inconsistent with absolute Eternity à parte ante.

Against the Immutability of Christ, and his beag on that account the supreme God, the same God ith the Father, proved from Heb. 1. 8. Thy Throne, God, is for ever and ever; He objects, that in a absequent Verse he is said to have a God above him, who hath appointed him to his Office. But the Answer easy; that, as Man, he hath a God above him; and Mediator, he was appointed to the Office, he bears, s such: but all this, as has been frequently observed, consistent enough with his being the most high

God, as to his divine Nature.

Will

o be hich

nder

hich

iere-

of all his

from

ether

hrift

e ga-

in e-inner of his 10n;

as to

rld;

h his

ereby

Holy

itting

aces,

race;

erates

it be

Sup-

and

e Fa-

f his or all

tho

ch is iffect

ences

reby;

He fays, that Text Heb. 13. 8. Jefus Christ the ame yesterday, to-day, and for ever, does not speak of he Person of Christ, as he apprehends. But for what reaon, I apprehend not. All the Texts he cites for proving, hat Jesus Christ means the Doctrine of Christ, and ot his Person, may and ought to be taken in the atter Sense. To preach and teach Christ, is to delare the Glory of his Person; to preach Christ cruify'd is to publish the Sufferings of the Person of Christ for the Sins of Men; to preach a Man's felf he Servant of God's People for Jesus sake, is to preach, that his Person is their Servant. It's true, n order to preach fully the Person of Christ, Men must preach his Doctrines, in order to a fuller Illustration, and Description of his Person: but that does not hinder, but the term Jesus Christ always signisses the second Person of the Trinity, God in our Nature, and no Instance can be given to the contrary, far less can this term be taken otherwise in this Text; for the Apostle is exhorting the Hebrews to remember them, that had the Rule over them, to follow their Faith, and imitate them; and to consider what End

and

and Issue such a Practice had: and as it had a good and happy Issue to their Guides; so, if they did important them, and sollow their Faith stedsastly, with out being carried about with divers and strange Doctrines, such a Practice should have the same End, and Issue, with respect to them; for theyserved the same unchangeable Master Jesus Christ, who is the same to day, yesterday, and for ever. And as he had made good his faithful Promises to their faithful Guides; so if they were his faithful Servants, and sollowed them, as far as they were Followers of Christ, they should have his Promises as faithfully made good to themselves.

Page 79th, he speaks of a mediate and immediate Making of the World; a Diffinction, that has neither any Foundation in Philosophy, or Divinity. The Light of Nature teaches, that all things were created by the supreme Being immediately, that is, without any Instrument in the Hand of that Almighty Power, peculiar only to supreme Deity. 'Tis true; the Light of Nature knows nothing of that Mystery of the Subfistence of supreme Deity in the three Persons of the Trinity, Father, Son and Holy Ghost: The Know. ledge of this is drawn from the supernatural Revelation, which teaches, that all these three Persons were equally concerned in the immediate Production of things out of nothing; by the Exertment of that almighty Power, common to each Person; and inherent in the Essence of the Godhead, and Deity, that fublists equally in each of them. The Light of Na ture teaches, that it is as glaring an Abfurdity, and Contradiction in the Nature of things; to fay; that, the supreme Being communicated a Power of creating to one infinitely inferiour to himself: whereby fucha dependent derived Being was unable to create other Beings out of nothing; as it would be to fay, that he communicated a Power to things, while they were yet in a State of Non-Existence, of creating themselves: For things in a State of Non-Existence, that is to say! nothings, are Subjects as capable of having this Power mmunic as the r to fu hich is r ore be herent i on-Entit false, w re does e supren ediately, what N ires a § n be co er, that ower to iffs in t any ot at is in ove thi Natur the fu r if the rinciple al Powe at there

hich is m, by odhead te disce
ny God
sfive in leason
hen mal

But, ut of n plain fr nent te

christ,

om.

good

d imi

With.

Doc.

id, and

e fame

me to made

es; fo

them,

should

them-

rediate

neither

reated

ithout

Power,

Light

e Sub-

of the

Know-

Reve-

Persons

luction

of that

y, that of Nay, and that,

reating

fucha

other

that he ere yet

elves:

to fay

Power com-

The

minunicated to them, and as capable of exercifing as the highest conceivable Being is, that is inferir to supreme Deity: and that Almighty Power, nich is necessary to the Creation of things, can no ore be inherent in a finite Subject, than it can be herent in, and exercised by that, which is a mere on-Entity: from whence it plainly follows, that it false, what this Author says, that the Light of Nare does not determine this Point, (viz.) whether e supreme and self-existent God created the World ediately, or immediately. But, fays the Remarker, what Method will this Author prove, that it reires a greater Power to make a finite World, than n be communicated to another? To which I aner, that I can prove, that it requires a greater ower to create any thing, even the least Atom, that ists in the World, than what can be communicated any other, or than any other can be possessed of at is inferiour to the supreme God: I say, I can ove this by the fame Medium, by which the Light Nature discovers the eternal Power and Godhead the supreme Being by the things that are made; r if the things, that are made, according to the rinciples of the Light of Nature, discover the eterl Power; and Godhead of the supreme Being; or at there is a God at all, I mean a God in a proper ense; then the Creation of things by Jesus Christ, hich is revealed in Scripture, is a very clear Medim, by which we may discern his eternal Power and odhead; eyen as clear a Medium, as that, by which e discern, that there is any supreme Being, that is, by God at all; and if this Medium should prove delive in one Case, it may with the same parity of leason prove so in the other; and if so, we plainly hen make an Atheist of the Arian.

But, says he, that this Power, of creating things ut of nothing, may be communicated to another, is lain from divine Revelation; for the New Testanent tells us, that God created all things by Jesus hrift, and that God by his Son created the Worlds.

But !

But in answer to this, I deny, that it is any when afferted in the Scriptures, that the Father created, the is, brought things out of nothing into Being by Son Jesus Christ. That Jesus Christ brought thing out of nothing into Being, I have largely proved but that it is said any where, that the Father effected this Work by him, I absolutely deny. And as to these two Texts Eph. 3. 9. where it is said, that Gol created all things by Jesus Christ; and Heb. 1.2. that by bim be made the Worlds; which are the only Palfages in divine Revelation, by which it is pretended to be proved, that a Power of creating is communication cated to another, who is not by Nature the supreme God: I fay, as to these Texts, I have plainly provide in my Sermons from Page 288 to 297, that they do not at all speak of the natural Creation, or of that Creation, whereby things are brought out of a State of Non-existence into Being; but of a supernatural Creation, whereby Men are renewed and fanctified: and confequently can be no Proof, that a Power of dreating things, that is, bringing them out of a State of Non-existence into Being, can be communicated to, or fublist in any Person, or Being, who is not the self-existent and supreme God, God by Nature. But concerning what I have there faid on these Texts, this Author wifely remarks nothing at all; though one might have expected an Answer to what I have of fered upon them, fince the Controversy turns so much ers his eternal ch

As to the Instance he gives Page 80, of the Lord's being said to lead the People alone; and Moses's being said to lead them also, it is nothing at all tohis purpose, the Case is so very different; for Moses's Acts of leading them were of a different, infinitely different, Nature, from the Acts performed by Jehovah in leading them: but here the same Act of Creations ascribed to Jesus Christ, which is peculiar to supreme Deity; whereas the Acts of leading, wherein Moses was concerned, were such as were competent to a Creature. As to these Texts Col. 1. 15. where Christ faid to s it show he is said hor of the r from hat the re his be r constitu petting erves, for hrift, to ver it undes this riginal with the he fupre

tion wit

Vature, uman I or ever, im, an hrough nuch, a had pr hat reli by him. hip, the ment of her.

He co

gate fro worship divine V more the Father, with fu hewed Father

15

when

d, that

by his thing

roved;

d as to

. that

y Pas-

tended

nmuni.

preme

provd

f that

a State

natural

tified!

wer of

a State

nicated

not the

e. But ts, this

zh one

ive of.

o much

Lord's

es's be-

is pur-

's Acts

diffe-

ehovah

ations

preme

Moles

t to a

Chrit

15

faid to be the First-born of every Creature, &c. or, it should be translated, he, that was begotten, beore there was any Creature; and Revel. 3. 14. where e is faid to be the Beginning, or the Origine or Auor of the Creation of God: I say, these Texts are so r from detracting from the supreme Deity of Christ. hat they are very pregnant Proofs of it. As little this being faid to be fent to reveal the Will of God, constituted and appointed Heir of all things inconstent with it; as I shew'd again and again, as repetting him as Mediator only. The fame Answer rves, for what he fays against the Dominion of hrift, that it is given to him; and that he must dever it up, (viz.) his mediatorial Dominion. But bedes this mediatorial Dominion, he has a natural, an riginal and underived Dominion in conjunction ith the Father and Holy Ghost, founded in his being he supreme God, Creator and Preserver in conjunion with them; and therefore, with respect to that Vature, which is distinguished from his Flesh, or uman Nature, he is faid to be God over all bleffed or ever, Rom. 9. 5. And feeing all things are of im, and through him, equally, as they are of, and brough the Father, they must be also to him, as nuch, as they are to the Father.

He comes next to the Head of religious Worship. had proved the supreme Deity of Christ from this, hat religious Worship was paid to him, and claimed by him. But says the Remarker, the religious Worship, that was paid to Christ, was by the Appointment of another, and by the Command of the Faher. This, I have already shewed, does not derogate from the supreme Deity of Christ, that he was worshipped with the highest Acts of supreme religious living Worship by the Appointment of Heaven; no more than it derogates from the supreme Deity of the sather, that he is worshipped by the same Authority with supreme and divine Worship. For, as I have hewed, the Command of the Son, to worship the sather with supreme divine Worship, lays as strong

an

an Obligation on Creatures, to worship him in that manner, without derogating from the Deity of the Father; as the Command of the Father obliges Crea. tures to worship the Son with supreme divine Wor. ship, without detracting in the least from his supreme Deity. And any of the Persons of the Trinity are honoured and glorified, when their Command is o. bey'd, in worshipping any of the sacred Three: the Father is glorified, when at his Command, the Son is worshipped with the same supreme Honour, that is paid to himself; and so is the Son, when the Father is worshipped at his Command. Nor does it follow, that the Son is a mere Creature, because in. feriour Worship is due to him, as he is a Creature; as this trifling Author weakly infinuates: for though he has a human Nature, which is the Object of civil Worship, and therefore inferiour Worship, yet that by no means hinders him, from having the divine Nature united to that in a strict personal Union; which renders him as justly the Object of supreme divine Worship, as the Father.

But he comes to answer particular Instances; and thinks fit to drop those, that I advanced from the Old Testament, for the Proof of Christ's supreme Deity; and puts all off with a Citation from Dr. Bennett, importing, that Messengers in those Parts put on the Air and Character of those, that fent them; and were treated, and spoke to after the same manner, as if their Constituents themselves had been pre-The contrary of which is plain from Abraham's Messenger, whom he sent to negotiate in a Treaty of Marriage for his Son Isaac, Gen. 24. where the Servant all along keeps himself in the Character of a Servant; and neither spoke himself, nor was he spoke to, as if he had been the Prince; tho' he was all the while acting for him, and in his Name: fo that in those days Masters knew as well to distinguish betwixt themselves, and Servants, as they do at this And as Abraham's Servant did not step into the same Station with his Master, nor affect the same

Honour would th ffected o be pa hal Chai withstan ondesce Characte er of a

Agair

from the Order o s that given to s paid another Lord J such be particul to be t that par Object depende him tha tempt o

Agai

shipped thing; Sense to Worshi were u Ghost, Nature fuch fer to the itrange vine H to Chr Whitby thut of Honour,

(75)

Honour, that was due only to his Prince; so far less would the Messenger, or Angel of the Covenant, have seed supreme divine Honours, and suffered them to be paid to him, if he had not indeed in his original Character been himself the most high God: notwithstanding he had, for the Benefit of Mankind, condescended voluntarily to take upon him an inferior Character, even the Form of a Servant, and Characer of a Messenger.

1 that

of the

Crea-

Wor.

preme ty are

1 is o-

: the

e Son that he Fa-

does it

use in-

ature;

hough

f civil et that

divine

nion;

me di-

; and

m the

m Dr.

Parts

them;

man-

n pre-

abam's

eaty of

Ser-

of a

fooke

all the hat in

h be-

t this

into

fame

nour,

Against my Proof of the supreme Deity of Christ from the Command given to the Angels, the highest Order of dependent Beings, to worship him, he says, s that Worship supreme, which is appointed to be given to Christ at a particular time by another, that s paid him by the Order, and at the Command of another? I answer, that it was not fit, that the Lord Jesus Christ, the second Person, should, as sich be worshipped, as the supreme God, before the particular time, that he was manifested, and reveal'd to be the supreme God: but he was not only worshipped by one Act of supreme divine Worship at that particular time; but he continues still to be the Object of supreme divine Worship to all reasonable dependent Beings to Eternity. And fuch as deny him that Honour, shall give an Account of their Contempt of him one Day.

Against my Proof from Matt. 2. 11. he offers nothing; but tells us, it is inconsistent with common Sense to take the word Worship for supreme religious Worship. But if we consider, how these wise Men were under an extraordinary Impulse of the Holy Ghost, and might thereby be instructed of the divine Nature of the Child Jesus, though he had not given such sensible Proofs of it as yet, as he afterwards did, to the Conviction of the World, it will not appear strange, that they worshipped him with supreme divine Honour. As to other Instances of Worship paid to Christ, he refers for an Answer to them to Dr. Whithy and Dr. Bennett. He seems to be glad to get shut of them himself. If he had borrowed any of their

L 2

Argu-

Arguments, I should have considered them. But he must know, that neither his, nor their Authority can be admitted as an Argument in this case: That civil Worship was paid to Kings, and great Personages, by bowing the Knee, or Prostration by the Eastern Countries, as well as by the Western, is not the Point in controversy. What he ought to have proved is, that that Worship paid to Christ, was civil Worship only; and answered my Arguments for the Proof of its being supreme divine Worship.

The Remarker tells us, that those Instances of Worship, believing, and trusting in Christ, and praying to him, may be paid to him, without supposing him to be the fupreme God, who fent, commissioned, and gave him for the purposes of our Salvation. this he means, that these Acts of Worship may be paid to him, without supposing him to be the supreme God the Father, I grant it; but if he means, that they may be paid to him, without supposing him to be the supreme God, the Son, I deny it absolutely: for, as I have proved at large, these Acts of Worship terminate upon supreme divine Excellencies; and a Believer cannot exert one Act of Faith in Christin a right Manner, without confidering him as possessed of supreme divine Excellencies, otherwise his Faith and Trust are placed on a wrong Object : and therefore fuch Acts, having supreme divine Excellencies for their Object, must be supreme divine Worship, as high as can possibly be paid to the Father.

Page 88, he cites two Passages from the Revel. that, I think, quite destroys his Scheme. The sirft is Revel. 5. 11, 12, 13. And I beheld, and heard the Voice of many Angels round about the Throne, &c. saying, with a loud Voice, worthy is the Lamb, that was slain, to receive Power, and Riches, and Wisdom, and Strength, and Honour, and Glory, and Blessing; and every Creature, that is in Heaven, &c. heard I, saying, Blessing, and Honour, and Glory, and Power be unto him, that sitteth upon the Throne, and to the Lamb for ever and ever. Are not the same Acclamations there given

iven to t

the Lar

ath loved

on Blood

iod and i

ed) unto

men. I

gain bet

et the fe

ivine W

ncontest

he fame

he only I had

he Med

Advocatious W

nd this

ploy Ch

Perfecti

for to en

divine ! the Fath

but a Pe

destitute

unfit to never h

necessar

ble of a

this Au interced

and ob

Emman

no oth

curing in need

Believe

But he

ty can

t CIVI

es, by altern

Point

ed is,

orship

oof of

Wor-

raying

g him

f, and
If by

nay be

preme

, that

im to utely:

Wor-

; and rist in

Meffed

Faith there-

lencies

orship,

Revel. ie first

rd the

t was

, and ; and

aying,

e unto

mb for

there given the Lamb, however their Persons are distinguished? The other Passage is Rev. 1.5, 6. And unto him, that ath loved us, and hath washed us from our Sins in his on Blood; and hath made us Kings and Priests unto sod and his Father, (as the Words are justly rended) unto him he Glory and Dominion for ever and ever, some living the Persons of the Father and Son; and et the self-same Degree of Praise, and the same supreme living Worship is equally ascribed to them both; an ancontestable Proof of their being equally posses'd of the same supreme divine Worship.

I had faid, that our trufting to, and relying upon he Mediation of the Son, and imploying him, as our Advocate with the Father, is as high an Act of relijous Worship, as can be performed to the Father; nd this I still affirm to be true. For no Man can employ Christ as his Advocate with the Father, unless te look upon him, as possessed of the same divine Perfections, as to his divine Nature, with the Father; or to employ a Person, that has not these supreme divine Excellencies, and the fame Perfections with the Father, as our Advocate, is not to employ Christ, but a Person infinitely inferiour to him; and a Person destitute of supreme divine Excellencies is absolutely unfit to be our Advocate: and, if Jesus Christ had not had these supreme divine Excellencies, he could never have acquired that Merit, which is absolutely necessary to our Advocate, in order to his being capable of acting the Part of an Advocate for us. And if. this Author has never employed fuch an Advocate to laterceed for him with the Father, I feriously exhort, and obtest him, to employ him by a Faith in him, as Emmanuel, the true supreme God in our Nature: for no other Advocate can be of any use to him, in procuring the faving Benefits, his Soul stands absolutely In need of. From what I have here faid, every true Believer, who has an Advocate with the Father, will ealily easily be able to discern the Disparity of the case, of Person's employing the Son of an earthly Prince, in interceed for him with his Father, from a Believe's employing the Son of God, to interceed for him with the Father; and cannot but be sensibly touched with the Blasphemy of the Author of the Comparison.

(78)

I had faid, that the Father is the Person of the Tri nity, who fustains the Character of supreme Deity, and maintains the Rights of the Majesty of Heaven Hence he infers, then, fays he, as this Concession al lows, the Son does not fustain the Character of for preme Deity in the Oeconomy of Salvation. Here observe an Arian Trick in the Remarker; he should have faid, which is all that I allow, that the Son is not the Person in the Trinity, according to the Occonomy of Salvation, who fustains the Character of supreme Deity, and defends the Rights of the Majelly of Heaven; for these are very different things, to be possessed of supreme Deity, as the Son is, and tossel tain the Character of supreme Deity in defending its Rights, according to the Oeconomy of Salvation; for this is the Father's Part only by a voluntary Agreement among the Persons of the Trinity, and the Part, that he acts in the Oeconomy of Salvation: but tho' the Son does not act this Part, to defend the Rights of supreme Deity in that voluntary Oeconomy, but acts another Part, which is affigned him by that same voluntary Oeconomy; — yet for all that he is the same supreme God with the Father: and the Part, that the Son acts, according to this Oeconomy, equally demonstrates his supreme Deity; and stands as much in need, that he should be the supreme God, in order to execute it duly; as that Part, that the Father acts in the Oeconomy of Grace, requires, that he should be the supreme God in order to execute it, and defend the Rights common to all the three Persons: and consequently it must be horrid presumptuous Arrogance in this Remarker, or any, who are in his way, to deny, that the Son has a Capacity, as he is the fupreme God by Nature, of executing that Part of e wolunt
e Metho
ather.
m to im Liberty
art, that on, wou erson of pnorance e Performat Part, on, and cedently eved in mark it, rft Performance low what thed in Part, who hablished shoft as would he hat it do continued hat in of thad be that by a act that to the ef the Son minates in that as I ha their D

Son, fridivine each.

he

(79)

fe, of

nce, t

liever

m with

ed with

ne Tri

Deity,

Ieaven.

ion al.

of fu.

Herel

should

Son is

Oeco-

of fu-

Majesty

, to be

to ful-

ling its

ration:

ary A.

nd the

ation:

nd the

econo-

im by ll that

nd the

nomy,

stands

God,

he Fa-

hat he

, and

rions:

is Ar-

in his

is the

the

n.

e voluntary Occonomy of Grace, that according to e Method actually established, belongs only to the ather. And it must be exceeding great Weakness in m to imagine, as he does, trusting to the Authority Liberty afferted, page 91. that the Son's acting the art, that the Father does in the Oeconomy of Salvaon, would change the Person of the Father to the erson of the Son. Here this weak Man betrays his morance of that which constitutes, or denominates e Person of the Father, which is, not his acting at Part, which he does in the Oeconomy of Salvaon, and Method of Grace; for he is the Father ancedently to this: but, as I have again and again obrved in my Sermons, if this Author had eyes to reark it, that, which constitutes and denominates the off Person of the Trinity, the Father, is the peculiar ay, by which the divine Nature subsists in him. low whatever Part the Father should, or might have fted in the Oeconomy of Salvation, whether that art, which the Son acts, according to the actually eablished Method of Grace, or that which the Holy Shoft acts; yet fince the divine Nature sublists, and would have fubfilted in him in that particular way, hat it does now notwithstanding, he would still have ontinued to be Father, even altho' we should suppose, hat in order to accomplish the Ends of Redemption, thad been judged fuitable and fit by the eternal Three, hat by a voluntary Condescension he should submit to at that Part, the Son, or Holy Ghost act, according to the established Method: for it is not the Part, that the Son acts in the Oeconomy of Salvation, that denominates him Son, nor the Part, that the Father acts in that Oeconomy that denominates him Father; but, as I have often shewed, both these Persons receive their Denomination, the one as Father, the other as Son, from the particular and peculiar Manner the divine Nature, Essence, or Substance, subsists in each.

Page 92, he tells us, that he, and those of his way would not deny any Honour to Christ, their Lord which the facted Scriptures, the great Rule of Faith and Practice, direct and require to be paid to him But how is this confiftent with what he adds, that the do not acknowledge him for the fame Being with the Father, nor that he is equal with him in all divine Perfections and Glory? Is not this plainly Arianifal which this same Author disclaim'd, Page 6th of the Remarks? Does he not hold this peculiar Doctrine of his here, that the Son is not opostore, of the same Na ture, Essence and Substance with the Father? Does he not hold him for a Creature, when he fays, that he is only the most excellent Being, next to the one God and Father of all? Is this to make any higher account of him, than the chiefest and highest of the Creatures! Are not all these peculiar Doctrines of Arius? Are they not all contrary to what is taught us concerning Christ in the Scriptures, as I show'd fully in my Ser mons? To own him as Lord in this Sense, only as a created Lord, is it not to fay, Hail Master; and at the same time to betray him? Do not the Scripture fay, that Jesus Christ thought it no Robbery to be equal with him, as I have fully shewed above? How then has this Man the impudence to fay, that he would not deny any Honour to Christ, which the Scripturds require to be paid to him? Is it not the whole Scope of his Book, to deprive him of all those divine Ho nours, the Scriptures afcribe to him thro' the whole Revelation? This is plainly to betray him with a Kis; and to crucify him afresh, under the Mask of a pres tended Friendship to the Father, and a Zeal for his Honour. The Father does not reckon himself dithonoured, when that peerless supreme Majesty, Authority and Glory, which belongs only to the one God, and Father of all Creatures, is afcribed to Jefus Christ, the only begotten Son of God.

Page 93d, he tells us, that it is one Person, that is always spoken of in the Old Testament, as the great Object of Worship; and to prove this, he cites seve-

Texts,
Weak
he first
ow let u mediate ople to d to ho
at God;
sides his e Fathe
ain it d yed, ar od be w hich the

reffed; 1

er, be om him at off d orshipp ne Fathe

ng wors exts, The ord Je
ather;
with the father if fod, and we work Lord ou Comma hip him if the L he Predoes no clude th

Persons And the Son, as are inc

ral

(81)

Texts, which I shall consider a little; and shew Weakness of his Argument drawn from them. he first is, Thou shalt have no other Gods besides me. ow let us suppose, that the Father is the Person, that mediately speaks these Words, commanding his ople to hold no pretended God for the true God; d to hold no God whatfoever for the true God, but at God; which he is; and to worship no other Gods fides him; who is the true God; how does that make e Father the only Person to be worshipped? It is ain it does not; for that Command is sufficiently oyed, and the Defign of it fully answered, if no other od be worshipped, which is distinct from that God; hich the Father is; and the Command is not transeffed, tho' the Son; a distinct Person from the Faer, be worshipped, seeing he is not a distinct God om him:, for the Design of the Precept is plainly to t off different Gods from the Father; from being orshipped; but not to cut off different Persons from e Father, who are the same God with him; from beg worshipped. This may be applied to the other exts, Thou shalt fear the Lord thy God: True, but the ord Jesus Christ is the Lord our God; as well as the ather; and therefore he ought to be worshipped, ith the fame Degree of Reverence and Fear, as the ather is. Again, Thou shalt worship the Lord thy od, and bim only shalt thou serve. Answer, When re worship the Lord Jesus Christ, we worship the ord our God; nor do we transgress that Part of the command, Him only shalt thou serve, when we worhip him, as the fame God with the Father. Indeed, the Lord Jesus Christ was a distinct God from that God, which the Father is; in that Case that Part of he Precept would be transgressed; for the Him only, loes not respect the Person of the Father, so as to exclude the Son and Holy Ghost; but it includes all these Persons of whom it may be said, that they are our God: And therefore, fince this may be faid truly of the Son, and Holy Ghost, as well as of the Father, they are included in the Term, Him only: And these Pera Kiss, a pres for his disholutho-God, Christ, is way

r Lord

f Faith

to him

nat they

vith the

divine

rianifi

of the

me Na

Does he

at he is

ne God

account

atures!

? Are

cerning

ny Sera

ly as a

and at iptures

to be

How

would

iptures

Scope

e Ho

whole

hat is great feve-

ral

fons only are excluded, of whom it cannot be faid that they are our God, (viz.) all, who are not poffeffed of the one divine Nature, Essence, and Substance, the only Foundation of religious Worship.

As to those Texts he cites from the New Testament Page 94th, they prove indeed, that the Father is the Object of supreme religious Worships which we never denied; but we contend, that the Son and Holy Ghoff are no less so, than the Father: and it is not inconfin. ent with the Son's being the Object of supreme religion ous Worship, that the Father is so; and therefore all the Texts, he cites here, are to no purpose. Only! would observe of that from I Cor. 8. 6. To us there is one God, the Father; which he cites, as a Proof, that the Person of the Father is the one God, exclusive of the other Persons of the Trinity; where, by a Trick, he conceals what follows in the same Verse, which, if he had fairly cited, the Weakness of his Argument would have appeared to every eye; for there it follows, To us there is one Lord Jesus Christ: which last Claufe excludes the Perfon of the Father, from being our Lord by the same Parity of Reason, that the first Clause excludes the Person of the Son, from being the one God.

In fine, fays he, Page 95, we are no where directed to address our selves to God, as being three Persons in one Essence, or to conceive of the divine Nature, a subsisting in three Persons, when we worship. The Falshood of which plainly appears from all those Palfages of Scripture, where the divine Perfections are particularly ascribed to the Son and Holy Ghost, as well as to the Father; which by the strictest Demonstration proves these Three to be equally possess'd of the same divine Nature, Essence and Substance; unless the Remarker can find out some other Substratum fit for these divine Perfections, as they subsist in the Son; which is different from the Essence and Substance of the Father, which is the Substratum of these Perfections, as they subsist in him: and as soon as he is able to do this, he will be capable of proving to Demonemonstr rict and ing the ith the-I nswer t bilm.

Page 9 preme . ing in A lead n ord Spi latter u g he do ys, as] othing ion: I f e tells u it; I do is Powe Ghost. Holy G ather. of God hat this his nece ounds t of the I aid, Li badowed on her. edges,

Father: most H ther, th Ghost c Ghost t the Ho human

of her

pemonstration, that there are three distinct Gods in a rict and proper Sense. See the Necessity of worshiping the Son, as the same one Being and Substance ith the Father, Page 21, 22, of my Vindication of the inswer to the sixth Question in the Assembly's Catebism.

Page 96th, he comes to consider my Proofs for the preme Deity of the Holy Ghost. Not to say any ing in Answer to what, he afferts, that I take no care lead my Readers into the various Senses, that the ord Spirit is taken in Scripture, or to explain that latter upon any rational foot of Interpretation; seeg he does not give any Argument to prove, what he ys, as I have commonly done in like Cases, where othing is advanced by him to make good his Afferon: I shall also pass to the second Paragraph, where e tells us, that I know, that God the Father is a Spiit; I do so: but I cannot affent to what he adds, that is Power, (viz.) the Father's Power, is the Holy shoft. This is absolutely false; for the Person of the Holy Ghost is as distinct from the Power of God the father, as God the Father is distinct from the Power of God the Holy Ghost. And I'm forry to say it, hat this Man feems to be very little acquainted with his necessary Article of the Christian Faith, who conounds the Persons of the Trinity, and the Properties of the Deity together at such a rate. 'Tis true, it is aid, Luke 1. 35. That the Power of the Highest overbadowed the Virgin, when the Holy Ghost came upon her. But this is far from being a Proof, as he aledges, that the Holy Ghost is the Power of God the Father; for it was the Power of the Holy Ghost, the most High God, the same most High God with the Father, that overfhadowed the Virgin, when the Holy Ghost came upon her: nor does this make the Holy Ghost the Father of the Logos; it only teaches us, that human Body of Christ in the Womb of the Virgin out the Holy Ghost supplied the Place, by his forming the of her Substance in an extraordinary and miraculous

M 2

way,

g to a Demon-

e faid offeffed

ice, the

tament,

1s the e never

y Ghoff

confift.

e religi.

fore all

Only I

there is

of, that

ulive of

Trick, hich, if gument

it fol-

ich last

n being the first

ing the

lirected

rions in

ure, as ofe Pafons are

rost, as

Demoness'd of

e; un-

stratum

in the

d Subof these

The

way, of one, who is a Father in a common and ordi nary Generation.

Again he fays, the Manifestation of God's Power or Energy, in the Communication of miraculous Gifts is frequently called his Spirit: If by his Spirit he means, they are frequently called the Spirit of God or the Holy Ghost figuratively, putting the Cause for the Effect, it is fo, we grant it: and fo these miracu. lous Gifts come to be the Gifts of the Holy Ghoft, Person distinct from the Father; and in this Sense is, that the Holy Ghost was not yet come, John 7.39. because his Gifts were not as yet poured out. And therefore these Works, that can be the Effects only of supreme Deity, being thus attributed to the Holy Ghoft, are a Proof of his supreme Deity; and no greater things can be ascribed to God, and his Power, than what are ascribed to the Holy Ghost, who is a distinct Person from the Father, and described by that Name in Scripture, as a diffinct Person from him, and things affirmed of him as a Person, that cannot in truth be affirmed of the Father.

I had proved from Numb. 12. 6. compar'd with 2 Pet. 1. 21. that the Holy Ghost is the true and supreme God, because Jehovah in the first of these Texts is faid, to make known himself to the Prophets in a Vision; and in the other the Prophets are faid to be spoke to, and moved by the Holy Ghost. But, fays the Remarker, if this proves any thing, it proves too much; for it proves the Holy Ghost to be the Person of the Father. But, pray, how is this made good? Is it any where faid, that the Jehovah, who fays, he will make himself known unto the Prophets in a Vision, is Jehovah the Father, exclusive of Jehovan the Holy Ghost? By no means. We are exprelly told the contrary by the Apostle Peter, that it was Jehovah, the Holy Ghost, that spoke them. fince he has that incommunicable Name ascribed to him, and is declared to be Jehovah, it is a full Proof of his supreme Deity. The same is the Case of my ext Pro Acts 28.

But he man tells Words; Holy Gl gument, Holy G or one g fore may his Serv ection, of the S he Fath divine F inferior phets an ceffary t keep cle king the is not th inspired us as th the Fatl nality, has ther ved; it pedient. gether, that spa furdity which, never b proper upon it tho' w Ghost,

divine

proclai

ext Proof, from Isa. 6. 8, 9, 10. compared with Atts 28. 25, &c.

d ordi.

Power,

s Gifts,

erit he

f God,

use for niracu-

hoft,

ense it

7. 39.

only of

e Holy and no

Power.

ho is a

by that

m, and in truth

d with

and fuf these rophets

faid to But,

proves

be the s made

rophets f Jeho-

xprefly

was le-

bed to

1 Proof

of my

And

And

But he feems to object, that the one inspired Penman tells us in one Place, that Jehovah spake these Words; and another, in another Place, tells that the Holy Ghost spake them; yet that is no conclusive Argument, that the Holy Ghost is Jehovah: for the Holy Ghost might speak them, as Jehovah's Servant, or one given by Jehovah to speak them; and therefore may be faid to do that himself, which he does by his Servant. There might be fomething in this Obection, if the Holy Ghost was thro' the whole Strain of the Scriptures represented, as an inferior Being to he Father; and if it was as glaringly evident in the livine Revelation, that the Holy Ghost was infinitely nferior to Jehovah, as his other Servants, the Prophets and Apostles were. In that Case it would be netessary to make use of such an Expedient as this, to keep clear of the Absurdity, that follows, upon making the Servant equal with the Master: but fince this is not the Case, and seeing the Holy Ghost, by all the inspired Penmen that speak of him, is represented to us as the supreme God, the same supreme God with the Father, 'tho' distinct from him in point of Personality, and as possessed of all divine Persections, and has them all ascribed to him, as I have largely proved; it is then very abfurd to recur to fuch an Expedient, in interpreting these two Texts compar'd together, as if the Apostle was speaking of a Servant, that spake these Words; seeing there follows no Abfurdity upon it, by taking them in their proper Sense, which, according to the Rules of true Criticism, should never be baulked, except where taking Words in their proper Sense, has some evident Absurdity following upon it, which is by no means the Case here: for altho' we understand these words of Jehovah the Holy Ghost, such a Sense would harmonize with the rest of divine Revelation; which with an unanimous Voice proclaims the Holy Ghost to be the true God: and therefore when he spake them, Jehovah may in the most proper Sense be said to speak them personally himself, and not by Proxy, or by a Servant. Nor is there any Instance in the Word of God, where any Servant of God, Angel, or Saint, speaks in the Person of God. And as to that Instance in Rev. 9. 1, 3. it is a Blunder in the Remarker to imagine, that that Text speaks of a created Person; for the Angel, that stood, saying, I will give Power to my two Witnesses, &c. was the Angel of the Covenant, Jehovah the Son; and it was infinitely fit, that he should speak in the Person of God, seeing he was God indeed, the most high God in the strictest Sense.

This Answer will also serve to refute, what the Remarker says upon Asts 5. 3, 4. where Peter says to Ananias, Why bath Satan filled thine Heart, to lye to the Haly Ghost; thou hast not lyed unto Men, but unto God. Where he ought to have taken notice, what I said upon this Text; and been at some pains to result it; and therefore I refer the Reader to the sull Answer of what is here said by the Remarker, to Page 371, 372, and 373, of my Sermons; where he will see, that all the Consequences, I there draw, stand in sull force against any thing, that has been offered by the Remarker to invalidate them. I had proved from Page 376 to 379 of my Sermons, that the Title Lord is ascribed to the Holy Ghost in fuch a Sense, as proves him to be the supreme God, the same supreme God with the Father and Son. What I advance there, the Remarker is pleased to say, Page 100, is an Interpretation, that he believes was never advanced before. Does this trifling Man think, that any Man of Taste will take this for an Answer to what I have faid on this Text, if it should prove true, that my Interpretation is new; which by the by I can prove, I am not altogether fingular in, as to the Substance of it; yet what says that to the purpose? The Question is, Whether it be just, or not? He should have shewed, that my Interpretation is not agreeable to the Context, or contrary to the Analogy of Faith;

r fome

much

o fo mi

f new I

herefore

ount of

ame M

nterpret

iffer a Q

nd prop

As to

ing a C

he Fews

Very tru

God had

Minister

s, they

he Spiri

legree a im: bu

of the S

hey we

Grace,

eminent

and his

under t

were mo

v. 17. f

hifter h

13. 2. a

faid, S whereun

Words

not bee

the Wo

nabas a imploy Origina

both as

alfo, as

n the

onally

Nor is

re any

e Per-

t Text

C. Was

and Person

t high

he Re-

to A

to the

o God.

ute it;

that all

orce a-

marker

rmons,

host in

e God, d Son.

to lay,

es was

think,

fwer to

y I can

he Sub-

? The

should

reeable

Faith;

OI

p some one way or other false, as well as new: And much the rather, that he, and those of his way, set p so much upon new Doctrines, and boast so much see new Discoveries in Divinity. It ill becomes him herefore to reject any Interpretation, merely on account of its being novel; for if he should have the ame Measure met to him again, the Doctrines and interpretations of Texts of Scriptures might come to after a great deal on that score, which are maintained nd propagated by him and others of his way.

As to 2 Cor. 3. 18. he tells us, the Apostle is maing a Comparison betwixt the darker Dispensation of he Jews, and the clearer Discoveries of the Gospel. Very true, he is doing so; and he tells us, v. 6. that God had made him and other Preachers of the Gospel Ministers, not of the Letter, but of the Spirit, &c. that s, they were in a more eminent manner Ministers of he Spirit, than Moses was; tho' he also was in some legree a Minister of the Spirit, for he was inspired by im: but the Ministers of the Gospel were Ministers of the Spirit in a more eminent manner, in regard that hey were Ministers of his under a Dispensation of Grace, wherein the Operations of the Spirit were more minently conspicuous upon the Hearts of Sinners, and his Influences more abundant, than what they were under the legal Dispensation, the Ministers whereof were more peculiarly Ministers of the Letter. 7.17. fays the Apostle, Now that Spirit (whose Minister he was, and who call'd him to that Office, Asts 13. 2. as they ministred to the Lord, the Holy Ghost laid, Separate me Barnabas and Saul for the Work whereunto I have called them) is the LORD, as the Words may be rendered. And to be sure, if he had not been the Lord, the Lord in the highest Sense of the Word, he could never, as fuch, have called Barnabas and Saul to, and fitted them for the Work, he imployed them about. 'Tis true, the Words in the Original, o de Kupios to Muso un corio, may be rendered, both as we have them translated in our Version, and also, as I have translated them, agreeably to the grammatical

matical Construction of them. But I humbly offer my Translation as the justest, and most agreeable to the Context, because of the following Clause of the Verse; for where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is Liberty; which last Clause, plainly in my Judgment, fixes the Sense of the first Clause to that, in which I take it; because the latter Clause gives the Reason; why the third Person of the Trinity, the Spirit, is the Lord, or Jehovah in the highest Sense, (viz.) because where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is Liberty; herein his Lordship, or absolute supreme Dominion is demonstrated, that by his Almighty Power he fets Sinners at Liberty; and in proportion as his Influences are let forth, fo Liberty is proportionably enjoy'd; and therefore, as his Influences were in a leffer measure let forth under the Old Testament Dispensation, than what they were under the New, on that account the New, or Gospel, Dispensation, is in a special manner called the Ministry of the Spirit; and also the Liberty enjoy'd under it is far superior to that of the Old: And farther, in the 18th Verse, the Apostle amplifies upon the Liberty, which the Holy Ghost causes under the Gospel-Dispensation; wherein he tells us, We all with open face beholding, as in a Glass, the Glory of the Lord, are changed to the same Image from Glory to Glory, by this Lord the Holy Spirit, από κυρίε πυεύματος From all which we fee, that the Holy Ghost is spoken of thro' the whole of the Chapter, whether we have a regard to the Argument and Design of the inspired Writer; or the natural Construction of the Words. And moreover these Effects, here ascribed to the Spirit, are fuch, as he is described to be the Cause of in other Passages of Scripture; and therefore they are justly interpreted of the third Person of the bleffed Trinity here.

I had faid for proof of the Eternity of the Holy Ghost, that our Saviour expresses his Procession, which is his personal Property, by which he is distinguished from the Father and Son in the same manner, as Jehovah expresses his own eternal Existence, (viz.) he proceedeth, oceedet b.

it he ex

ay, as t

mfelf,

ture Wit

ly desci

gainst t

der to p refent, a

not as i ovah's E

either pa

ut, in p

s, in a

oes, who

lys he,

natched.

Mistance

he Paffa

ism of 1

non, an

Railing 1

ument o

Page 1

on, or

rother

for ther

Reading

of which

he Logo

to be th

nimfelf

any other

Spirit?

God?

and chi

rance.

imnix.)

y offer

able to

of the

there is

gment.

which I

Reason;

, is the

pecause

berty;

minion

he fets

nfluen-

njoy'd;

ieafure

, than

int the

nanner

iberty

Old:

plifies

les un-

lory of

lory to ύματος*

poken

have a

fpired

Vords.

e Spi-

of in

ey are

oleffed

Holy

which

uished

as Jez.) he

edeth,

occedeth, not that he did proceed, or shall proceed; the expresseth it in the present time in the same. ay, as the Eternity of Jehovah is fitly described by mself, I am, that I am, as having nothing past, or ture with him; fo is the Eternity of the Holy Ghost ly described, by his Procession's being always present. gainst this the Remarker does not offer one word in der to prove, that the Manner of the Description of e Procession of the Holy Ghost, as being always elent, and having neither past nor future with him, not as strong an Argument for his Eternity, as Jewah's Existence, being described, as having with him either past nor future, is a Proof of his eternal Existence: ut, in place of shewing any Disparity of the two Cas, in a way worthy of himself, and as he usually oes, when his Argument fails him, he falls a railing; ys he, this is a Piece of Criticism, as is not easily atched, — No intelligent Person needs any other fiftance towards answering this, than barely to read he Passage.—According to this wonderous Criti-Ifm of his, these, and such like, are his most comon, and best Arguments; but I would not return lailing for Railing, for I think I have force of Arument on my fide.

Page 102, I proved from Heb. 9. 14. that either the son, or Holy Ghost was the supreme God, from one, or other of them being called there the eternal Spirit, for there is no Argument against and being the true Reading in that Text, the some Copies should read it leaves.) But, says the Remarker, let it be understood of which you will (whether of the Holy Ghost, or of the Logos) it cannot prove either the one or the other to be that supreme God, to whom Christ offered up himself without spot. I ask, for what Reason? Is there may other supreme God besides him, who is an eternal Spirit? Is there any eternal Spirit besides the supreme God? To use this Author's Words for once, it is vain and childish, and an Argument of the greatest Ignorance, to fay, there is.

What the Remarker says, against my Proof of the Omnipresence of the Holy Ghost, is so exceeding silly, and he has mistaken so far, where the Force of the Argument lies, that I refer the Reader, to what have said on that Head from p. 383 to p. 388 of my Sermons; appealing to him, as I do with respect to many other Passages of my Sermons, whether he has said any thing to the purpose against them, or not. And I would observe it here once for all, that he carefully passes every Argument, that is so glaringly demonstrative, that Impudence itself dare not attack it. And all those Arguments, he has passed by, are therefore justly to be reputed valid; and, to the Remarkers Conviction, unanswerable.

Against my Proof of the Independency of the Omniscience of the Holy Ghost, and that he possesses that divine Perfection peculiar to supreme Deity from Isa. 40. 13. Who hath directed the Spirit of the Lord. or being his Counsellor has taught him, &c. He fays, that that Text does not speak of the Holy Ghost at all more than the 139 Pfalm does; and both of them, he fays, are beautiful Descriptions of God. True; but the Question is, whether, or not, they are beautiful Descriptions of God the Holy Ghost, and of his Perfections particularly, who is a diffinct Person from the Father, and the Son, and known to be a distinct Person by that very Name, the Spirit of the Lord, through the whole divine Revelation. To give but one Instance of it, 2 Chron. 18. 23. Then Zedekiah, the Son of Chenaanah, came near and smote Micajah upon the Cheek, and said, which way went the Spirit of the Lord from me, to speak unto thee? compared with 2 Pet. 1.21. For the Prophecy came not in old time, or as it may be rendered, at any time, wort, by the Will of Man, but holy Men of God spake, as they were moved by the Holy Ghost. So that the Spirit of the Lord in the Old Testament is the same Person with the Holy Ghost in the New. And whether, or not, the Holy Ghost is the same Person, or a distinct Person from the arker's Moreov te my] erived (Cor. 2. id to fee ecause C the V ospel to all det ginal O econom art, of nlighten eries, n he Fathe hese thir that Kr ated to imself, or, if w Words realed to

e Fathe

Holy G fay, i Verse w it's, K not sear the dee case he cated to notwith

ath co

from hi Part of furd, w

Knowle

God th

Father, I leave to be determined, by the Re-orker's discerning Judgment.

of the

ceeding

orce of

whatI

my Ser-

o many

as faid

. And

arefully

demon-

t. And

nerefore

narkers

he Om-

offesses

ty from

e Lord.

Ie fays, shoft at

f them,

True;

e beau-

of his

of the

Moreover, Page 104, the Remarker would invalite my Proof of the independent, original, and unrived Omniscience of God the Holy Ghost from Cor. 2. 10. last Clause of that Verse, where he is id to fearch all things, even the deep things of God; ecause God, (viz.) God the Father, in the first Clause the Verse, is said to reveal the Mysteries of the ospel to Mankind by his Spirit. But this does not all detract from the Holy Spirit's underived and oginal Omniscience; for tho' according to the agreed economy, he hath voluntarily undertaken to act this art, of being fent both by the Father and Son, to lighten Mankind in the Knowledge of Gospel-Myeries, necessary to Salvation; yet his being sent of e Father for this purpose, or the Father's revealing hese things by him, does not in the least infer, that hat Knowledge he reveals to Men, is communiated to him; and that he has it not originally in imself, as independently, as the Father himself hath; or, if we should take that to be the Sense of these Words in the first Clause of the Verse, God hath rerealed them to by us bis Spirit, that is, the Father Person ath communicated the Knowledge of them to the to be a Holy Ghost, and he to the Prophets and Apostles: fay, if this was the Sense, the first Part of the To give Verse would contradict the last; for, if his, the Spidekiah, it's, Knowledge was communicated to him, he can-Micajah not search all things, even the most intricate things, the deep things of God, as the Text says: in that case he could search no further, than was communicated to him, and there might, and doubtless would, notwithstanding, of this supposed communicated knowledge, be abundance of deep things of God hid from him; which is a flat Contradiction to the latter. Holy Part of this Verse; and therefore, that Sense is ab-e Holy surd, which the Remarker puts on the first. My Proof from Gen. 1. 2. of the supreme Deity of the God the Holy Ghost, because the Work of Creation

N 2

is afcribed to him, he endeavours to refute, by Citation from Bishop Patrick, which has not on word in contradiction to what I affirm; for with his I take the meaning of these Words, the Spirit God moved on the Face of the Waters, to be the in finite Wildom and Power of God, viz. the Hol Spirit, which made a mighty Motion on the Face the Waters. I shall take no farther notice of, what the Remarker adds in this 105 Page, feeing he ad vances no Argument in it; only I would observe that he draws an unjust Inference: for tho' there wa no express Declaration of the Holy Ghost's being a Agent, either supreme, or subordinate, in the Cre ation of the World, in the New Testament, yet it fally hence inferred, that therefore he was not an A gent in the first Creation; for the New Testament being chiefly taken up, in declaring the Agency of God the Holy Ghost, and the Exertment of his al mighty Power in the second Creation, by the Effect of his Grace on the Hearts and Souls of Men, then was no occasion to declare expressly his Agency in the first Creation; seeing that is expressly enough taugh in the Old Testament; and may also sufficiently b gathered by just Inference from what is faid of his in the New Testament, 1 Cor. 12. 6. It is the same God, that worketh all in all. When God the Hol Ghost worketh in the second Cretion, he doth no therein work exclusive either of the Father, of Son; when God the Father worketh in the first Cre ation, in bringing things out of nothing into Being he doth not therein work either exclusive of the Son or Holy Ghost; but these Persons work togethe with him, being the same God, as he is; tho' each of them distinct Persons from him: for in all Opera tions ad extra, all these three Persons being the sam God, work all in all.

Page 107, he tells us, that I confidently affer there are many Instances in Scripture, wherein su preme divine Worship is paid to the Holy Ghost, a a distinct Person from the Father and Son; and say eshall sen a Rave obseship paid 22 of merhaps he Reman rom the iven to Holy Ghrom Pa

Il the the Acts of who is a from Paret this have pro-

I had

he tern

first Per five of the ments at there at shall not stall not tays, so term I called. of the his beg

Again Trinit Relati the Re

becaus

who ar

and sp

te, by not on with hin

Spirit

the in

he Hol Face

of, wha

observe

nere wa

being a t an A

stament

gency o

his al

Effect

n, ther y in th

taugh

ently b

of hin

ne Hol

loth no

her, o

rst Cre

Being

the Son

ogethe

each o

Opera

he fam

A mor

rein fu

hoft, a nd fay

be same

hall stay still I produce them. But, if he had en a Remarker, worthy of the Name, he might ave observed an Instance of supreme divine Worhip paid to God, the Holy Ghost, produced Page 22 of my Sermons; to which I refer the Reader; erhaps he may have the Eyes to remark it, tho he Remarker wants them. Let the Reader also turn another Inflance of supreme religious Worship, g he ad aid to God, the Holy Ghost, as a distinct Person om the Father, and Son, in the baptismal Charge, iven to the Apostles, to baptize in the Name of the Holy Ghost, as well as of the Father and Son. See the Cre from Page 115 to 120 of my Sermons, where this yet it is proved to be supreme religious Worship, paid to Il the three Persons of the Trinity. See also many Acts of religious Worship, paid to the Holy Ghost, tho is a distinct Person from the Father, and Son, from Page 418 to Page 431 of my Sermons. And ret this Man has the Impudence to infinuate, that I ave produced none.

I had faid, that we are not to imagine, that by he term Father in the DIRECTORY for Prayer, the first Person of the Trinity only is understood, exclulive of the Son and Holy Ghost; he has three Arguments against this: 1. He is surprized to read what I there advance. 2dly, It is most extraordinary, I shall not at all confider the Weight of these two. But odly, he infinuates an abfurd Consequence, that he lays, seems to follow from what I affert; as if the term Father did not denote that Person, who is so called. I answer, it does not denote the first Person of the Trinity, who is called Father on account of his begetting the Son, exclusive of the other Persons, who are each of them our Father, both in a natural and spiritual Sense equally, as the first Person is. Again he infers, because I say, the first Person of the affer Trinity is not denominated Father, because of the Relation he bears to the Holy Ghost, or because of the Relation, he stands in to the Creatures, but only because of the Relation, he bears to the Son; therefore, fays he, it feems, he is not to be confidered a Father to us Creatures. This is a false Inference. no more follows from my Affertion, than that the Bather is not our Father in the Sense, that he is the Father of his eternal Son: yet notwithfranding he may be, and is, to the Creatures a Father in the fame Sense, as the Son and Holy Ghost is their Father: and fo much I expressly affert, Page 418, of my Sermons; it must be very gross Ignorance then in this Remarker, or fomething worse, to charge me with disowning the first Person of the Trinity for our Father, as we are Creatures, equally with the Son and Holy Ghost, each of whom is our Father in that Senfe alfo. And the none of the Creatures ought to call the first Person of the Trinity their Father by eternal Generation; or their Father in the Sense, in which it belongs only to God the Son, to call him Father, yet they are allow'd, and commanded, by the Directory for Prayer, not only to address God the Son, and God the Holy Ghost for those Bleffings and Benefits of the Covenant, which is their respective Province, according to the Part they act in the Method of Grace, to bestow; but also they are by that Directory allowed, and commanded to address the first Person of the Trinity under the Character of Father, as the Giver of Benefits, which, according to the Part he acts in that same Oeconomy, is his Province, and peculiar Part to give.

Thus I have answered all, that this puny Remarker has objected against, what I have delivered in my Sermons. Nor should I have taken any notice of fo poor a Writer, if he had not pretended to take what he fays from the Authors of the Arian Party, that are of greatest Esteem among them. And I submit to the Judgment of Mankind, how far my Anfwers take off all their Objections; leaving the whole to the divine Bleffing; begging that Almighty Jesus may make what I have wrote effectual, if not to the reclaiming of any Arian, yet to the confirming of those in the way of Truth, who are not infected with that pernicious Error, FINIS.

red in notice to take Party, I fubwhole whole ing of the dwith

nterend that th is not our e is the Hame much I expressly affects I is; it must be very gross Ignorance ther Remarker, or fomething worse, to charge m with disowning the first Person of the Trinity for or Father, as we are Creatures, equally with the Son and Holy the to belones only us. God the Son, to call him ret they are allow a and commanded, by he Directory for Prayer, not only to address God the Son, and God the Holy Ghost for those Bleffings and Benefits of the Covenant, which is their respective Province, according to the Part they act in the Method of Grace, to bestow; but also they are by that Directory allowed, and commanded to address the first Person of the Printy under the Character of ne Giver of Benefits, which, according to the Part he acts in that fame Occonomy, is his Province, and peculiar Part to give.

Thus I have answered all, that this puny Remarker has objected against, what I have delivered in my Sermons. Nor should I have taken any notice of so poor a Writer, if he had not pretended to take what he says from the Authors of the Arian Party, that are of greatest Esteem among them. And I submit to the Judgment of Mankind, how far my Answers take off all their Objections, leaving the whole to the divine Blessing; begging that Almighty Jess may make what I have wrote effectual, if not to the reclaiming of any Arian, yet to the confirming of those in the way of Truth, who are not infected with that pernicious Error, FINIS.

19 00 91

the state of the s

red in notice of take Party, I fuby Anwhole Jefus to the ing of the rith